Antonio, and Delio, Bosola, Cardinall.

Delio. YOU are wel-come to your Country (deere Antonio)
You have been long in France, and you returne
A very formall French-man in your habit.

How do you like the French Court ?

Ant. I admire it,

In seeking to reduce both State and People
To a fix'd Order, there judicious King
Begins at home : Quits first his Royall Pallace
Of flattering Sicophants, of dissolute,
And infamous persons, which he sweetly termes
His Masters Master-peece (the work of Heaven)
Considering duely, that a Princes Court
Is like a common fountaine, wheace should flow,
Pure silver drops in generall : But if 't chance
Some curs'd example poyson't neare the head,
" Death, and diseases through the whole land spread,
And what is't makes this blessed government,
But a most provident Councell, who dare freely
Informe him, the corruption of the times ?

Though so ne oth' Court hold it presumption
To instruct Princes what they ought to do,
It is a noble duety to informe them
What they ought to fore-see : Here comes Bosola

The only Court-Gall : et I observe his rayling
Is not for simple love of Piet :

Indeed he rayles at those things which he wants,
Would be as lecherous covetous, or proud
Bloudy, or envious, as any man,

If he had meanes to be so : Here's the Cardinall,

Bos. I do haunt you still.

Card. So

Bos. I have done you

Better service than to be slighted thus :

Miserable age, where only the reward

Of doing well, is the doing of it.

The Tragedy of

Car. You inforce your merit too much.

Bos. I fell into the Gallies in your service,
Where, for two yeeres together, I wore two Towels in stead of
A shirt, with a knot on the shoulder, after the fashion of a
Romane Mantle : Slighted thus ? I will thrive some way :
Black birds fatten best in hard weather : why not I,
In these dogge dayes ?

Car. Would you could become honest,

Bos. With all your divinity, do but direct me the way to it, I
Have knowne many travell farre for it, and yet returne as Arrant knaves, as they went forth ; because they carried Themselves alwayes along with them ; Are you gon ?
Some fellows (they say) are possessed with the divell,
But this great fellow, were able to possesse the greatest
Divell, and make him worse.

Ant. He hath denied thee some suit ?

Bos. He, and his brother, are like Plum-trees (that grow crooked Over standing-pooles) they are rich, and ore-laden with Fruit, but none but Crows, Pyes, and Cater-pillers feede
On them : Could I be one of their flattering Panders, I Would hang on their eares like a Horse-leech, till I were full, and Then drop off : I pray leave me.

Who would relie upon these miserable dependances, in expectation to be advanc'd to morrow ? what creature, ever fed worse, than hopping Tantalus ? nor ever died any man more fearfully, than he that hop'd for a pardon : There are rewards for hawks, and dogges, when they have done us service ; but for a souldier that hazards his limbes in a battaile, nothing but a kinde of Geometry, is his last supporation. Del. Geometry ?

Bos. I, to hang in a fair pair of slings, take his latter-swing in the World, upon a honorable paire of Crowtches, from hospitall
To hospitall, fare ye well Sir. And yet do not you scorne us, for Places in the Court, are but like beds in the hospitall, where this Mans head lies at that mans foot, and so lower and lower.

Del. I knew this fellow (even yeeres) in the Gallies.
For a notorious murthér, and 'twas thought
The Cardinall subborn'd it : he was releas'd
By the French Generall (Gustav de Foix)
When he recover'd Naples. Ant. 'Tis great pity.
He should be thus neglected, I have heard

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

He's very valiant : This foule melancholly
Will poison all his goodnesse, for (Ile tell you)
If too immoderate sleepe, be truly said
To be an inward rust unto the soule ;
It then doth follow, want of action
Breeds all blacke male-contents, and their close rearing
(Like mothes in cloth) doe hurt for want of wearing.

SCENA II.

Antonio, Delio Ferdinand, Cardinal, Dutchesse, Castruchio, Silvio, Rodocico, Grisolan, Bosola, Julia, Cariola.

Del. The Presence 'gins to fill, you promis'd me
To make me the partaker of the natures
Of some of your great Courtiers.

Ani. The Lord Cardinals

And other strangers, that are now in Court,
I shall : here comes the great Calabrian Duke.

Ferd. Who tooke the Ring of knighthood ?

Sil. Antonia Bologna (my Lord)

Ferd. Our sister Dutchesse great Master of her household ?
Give him the Jewell : when shall we leave this sportive action,
And fall to action indeed ?

Cast. Methinks (my Lord)

You should desire to go to war, in person.

Fer. Now, for some gravity : why (my Lord)

Cast. It is fitting a souldier arise to be a Prince, but not necessary
A prince descend to be a Captaine ?

Ferd. No ?

Cast. No, (my Lord)

He were far better to doe it by a Deputy.

Ferd. Why should he not aswell sleep, or eat by a Deputy ?
This might take idle, offensive, and base office from him,
Whereas the other reprints him of honor.

Cast. Beleeve my experience: that Realme is never long in quiet,
Where the Ruler is a Souldier. Ferd. Thou toldst me.

Thy wife could not indure fighting.

Cast. True (my Lord.)

Ferd. And of a jest she broke of a Captaine,
She met full of wounds : I have forgot it.

Cast. She told him (my Lord) he was a pittifull fellow, to lie

The Tragedy of

Like the Children of Ismael all in Tents.

Ferd. Why, there's a wit were able to undoe
All the Chyrurgeons o'th City, for although Gallants should quarrell, and had drawn their weapons,
And were ready to go to it; yet her perswasions would Make them put up. Cast. That she would (my Lord)
How do you like my Spanish Gennit?

Rod. He is all fire.

Ferd. I am of Pliny's opinion, I think he was begot by the wind,
He runs as if he were ballast'd with Quick-silver.

Sil. True (my Lord) he reeles from the Tilt-often.

Rod. Gris. Ha, ha, ha.

Ferd. Why do you laugh? Me thinks you that are Courtiers
Should be my touch-wood, take fire, when I give fire;
That is, laugh when I laugh, were the subject never so witty.

Cast. True (my Lord) I my selfe have heard a very good jest,
And have scorn'd to seem to have so silly a wit, as to understand it.

Ferd. But I can laugh at your Foole (my Lord.)

Cast. He cannot speake (you know) but he makes faces,
My Lady cannot abide him. Ferd. No?

Cast. Nor endure to be in merry company: for she saies
Too much laughing, and too much company, fills her
Too full of the wrinkle.

Ferd. I would then have a Mathematicall Instrument made for Her face, that she might not laugh out of compasse: I shall shortly
Visit you at Mellaine (Lord Silvio)

Sil. Your Grace shall arrive most wel-come.

Ferd. You are a good Horse-man (Antonio) you have excellent
Riders in France, what do you think of good Horse-man-ship?

Ant. Nobly (my Lord) as out of the Grecian-horse, issued
Many famous Princes: So, out of brave Horse-man-ship,
Arise the first Sparkes of growing resolution, that raise
The mind to noble action.

Ferd. You have be-ipoake it worthily.

Sil. Your brother, the Lord Cardinall, and sister Dutchesse.

Card. Are the Gallies come about?

Gris. They are (my Lord.)

Ferd. Here's the Lord Silvio, is come to take his leave.

Del. Now (Sir) your promise: what's that Cardinall?
I meane his temper? they say he's a brave fellow,

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Will play his five thousand crownes, at Tennis, Daunce,
Court Ladies, and one that hath fought single Combats.

Ant. Some such flouts superficially hang on him, for forme:
But observe his inward Character: he is a melancholly
Church-man: The Spring in his face, is nothing but the Ingendring of Toades: where he is jealous of any man,
He laies worse plots for them, than ever was impos'd on Hercules: for he strewes in his way Flatters, Panders,
Intelligencers, Atheists, and a thousand such politicall
Monsters: he should have been Pope: but in stead of Commung to it, by the primitive deuencie of the Church,
He did bestow bribes so largely, and so impudently, as if he would Have carried it away without Heavens knowledge. Some good he Hath done.

Del. You have given too much of him: what's his brother?

Ant. The Duke there? a most perverie, and turbulent Nature,
What appears in him mirth, is meerely outside,
If hee laugh hartily, it is to laugh
All honesty out of fashion.

Del. Twins.

Ant. In quality:

He speaks with others tongues, and heares mens suites,
With others eares: will seeme to sleep o'th bench
Only to intrap offenders in their answers;
Doomes men to death, by information,
Rewards, by heare-say.

Del. Then the Law to him
Is like a fowle black Cob-web, to a Spider,
He makes it his dwelling, and a prison
To entangle those shall feed him.

Ant. Most true:
He nev'r payes debts, unlesse they be shrew'd turnes,
And those he will confesse, that he doth owe;
Last: for his brother, there, (the Cardinall)
They that do flatter him most, say Oracles
Hang at his lips: and verily I beleve them:
For the Devill speaks in them.

But for their sister, (the right nob'e Dutchesse)
You never fix'd your eye, on three faire Meddals.
Cast in one figure, of so different temper:
For her discourse, it is so full of rapture,
You only will begin, then to be sorry
When she doth end her speech: and wish (in wonder)

The Tragedy of

She held it lesse vaine glory, to talke much.
Than your pennance to heare her : whilst she speaks,
She throwes upon a man so sweet a looke,
That it were able raise one to a Galliard
That lay in a dead palsey ; and to doate
On that sweet countenance : but in that looke,
There speaketh so divine a continence,
As cuts off all lascivious, and vaine hope.
Her dayes are practis'd in such noble vertue,
That, sure her nights (nay more her very Sleeps)
Are more in heaven, than other Ladies Shrifts.
Let all sweet Ladies, breake their flattrng Glasses,
And dresse themselves in her. Del. Fye Antonio,
You play the wire-drawer with her commendations.

Ant. I'll case the picture up : only thus much,
All her particular worth, grows to this sum :
She staines the time past : lights the time to come.

Cariola. You must attend my Lady in the gallery,
Some halfe an houre hence. Ant. I shall.

Ferd. Sister, I have a suit to you : Dutch. To me sir ?

Ferd. A Gentleman here : Daniel de Bosola :

One that was in the Gallies. Dutch. Yes, I know him.

Ferd. A worthy fellow h'is : pray let me entreat for
The provisorship of your horse.

Dutch. Your knowledge of him,

Commends him and prefers him.

Ferd. Call him hither,

We now upon parting : Good I ord Silvio

Doe us commend to all our noble friends

At the Leaguer. Sil. Sir, I shall.

Ferd. You are for Millaine ? Sil. I am.

(Haven

Dutch. Bring the Carroches : we'll bring you downe to the Car. Be sure you entertaine that Bosola

For your intelligence : I would not be seene in't,

And therefore many times I have slighted him,

When he did court our furtherance : as this Morning.

Ferd. Antonio, the great Master of her household
Had beene farre fitter.

Card. You are deceiv'd in him,

His Nature is too honest for such businesse.

He comes : I'll leave you : Bos. I was lur'd to you.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Ferd. My brother here (the Cardinall) could never abide you. Bos. Never since he was in my debt.

Ferd. May be some oblique character in your face, made him suspect you?

Bos. Doth he study Phisognomy?
There's no more credit to be give to th' face,
Than to a sicke mans uryn, which some call
The Physitians whore, because she cozens him:
He did suspect me wrongfully. Ferd. For that
You must give great men leave to take their times:
Distrust, doth cause us seldome be deceiv'd;
You see, the oft shaking of the Cedar-Tree
Fastens it more at root. Bos. Yet take heed:
For to suspect a friend unworthily,
Instructs him the next way to suspect you.
And prompts him to deceive you.

Ferd. There's gold. Bos. So.
What follows? (Never rain'd such showres as these Without thunderbolts i'th taile of them) whose throat must I cut?

Ferd. Your inclination to shed blood, rides post
Before my occasion to use you: I give you that
To live i'th Court, here; and observe the Dutchesse,
To note all the particulars of her behaviour:
What suitors do sollicite her for marriage
And whom she best affects: she's a yong widow,
I would not have her marry againe. Bos. No Sir?

Ferd. Doe not you aske the reason: but be satisfied,
I say I would not.

Bos. It seems you would create me
One of your familiars. Ferd. Familiar? what's that?

Bos. Why, a very quaint invisible divell, in flesh:
An Intelligencer.

Ferd. Such a kind of thriving thing
I would wish three; and ere long, thou maist arrive
At a higher place by't. Bos. Take your Divels
Which Hell calls Angels: these curs'd gifts would make
You a corrupter, me an impudent traitor,
And should I take these they'll'd take me hell.

Ferd. Sir, I'll take nothing from you, that I have given:
There is a place, that I procur'd for you

The Tragedy of

This morning : (the Provisorship o'th horse)

Have you heard ont ? Bos. No.

Ferd. 'Tis yours, is't not worth thanks ?

Bos. I would have you curse your selfe now, that your bounty
(Which makes men truly noble) ere should make Me a villaine : oh, that to avoid ingratitude

For the good deed you have done me, I must doe

All the ill man can invent : Thus the divell

Candies all finnes ore : and what Heaven teares vild,

That names he complementall. Fer. Be your selfe :

Keepe your old gaibe of melancholly : 'twill expresse

You envy those that stand above your reach,

Yet strive not to come neere'em : This will gaine

Access, to private lodgings, where your selfe

May (like a pollitricque dormouse,

Bos. As I have seene some,

Feed in a Lords dish, halfe a sleepe, not seeming

To listento any talke : and yet these Rogues

Have cut his throat in a dreame : what's my place ?

The Provisorship o'th horse ? say then my corruption

Grew out of horse-dung : I am your creature. Fer. Away.

Bos. Let good men, for good deeds, covet good fame,

Since place, and riches oft are bribes of shame ;

Sometimes the Divell doth preach.

Exit Bosola.

Card. We are to part from you : and your own discretion

Must now be your director.

Ferd. You are a Widowe :

You know already what man is : and therefore

Let not youth : high promotion, eloquence,

Card. No, nor any thing without the addition, Honor,

Sway your high blood.

Ferd. Marry ? they are most luxurious,

Will wed twice. Card. O fie :

Ferd. Their livers are more spotted

Than Labans sheepe.

Duch. Diamonds are of most value

They say ; that have past through most Jewellers hands.

Ferd. Whores, by that rule are precious :

Duch. Will you heare me ?

I'll never marry. Ferd. So most Widowes say :

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

But commonly that motion lasts no longer
Than the turning of an houre-glasse, the funerall Sermon,
And it, end both together. Ferd. Now heare me :
You live in a ranke pasture here, i'th Court,
There is a kind of honny-dew, that's deadly :
'Twill poyson your fame ; looke to't : be not cunning :
For they whose faces doe belye their hearts,
Are Witches, e're they arrive at twenty yeeres,
I : and give the divell sucke.

Duch. This is terrible good counsell :

Ferd. Hypocrisie is woven of a fine small thred, (Subtler than Vulcans Engine : yet (beleeve)
Your darkest actions : nay, your privat thoughts, will come to light.

Card. You may flatter your selfe,
And take your owne choice : privately be married
Under the Eves of night.

Ferd. Think't the best voyage
That ere you made ; like the irregular Crab,
Which thought goes backward, thinks that it goes right,
Because it goes its owne way : but observe ;
Such weddings may more properly be said
To be executed, than celebrated.

Card. The marriage night
Is the entrance into some prison.

Ferd. And those joyes,
Those lustfull pleasures, are like heavy sleepes
Which doe fore-run mans mischief.

Card. Fare you well.
Wisdomes begins at the end : remember it.

Duch. I thinke this speech betwene you both was studied,
It came so roundly off. Ferd. You are my sister,
This was my fathers ; oynard : doe you see
I'd be loath to see it lookerusty, cause 'twas his :

I would have you give o're these chargeable Revels ;

A Vizer, and a Masque are whispering roomes

That were never built for goodnesse : fare yewell

And women, like that party which (like the Dumpey)

Hath nry a bone in't.

Duch. Eyn Sh. Ferd. Nay,
I mean the tongue : variety of Courtship,

The Tragedy of

What cannot a neat knave with a smoothe tale,
Make a woman believe? farewell, lusty Widow.

Duch. Shall this move me? if all my royall kindred
Lay in my way, unto this marriage;
I'd make them mow low foot-steps: And even now,
Even in this hate (as men in some great battailes
By apprehending danger, have achiev'd
Almost impossible actions: I have heard Souldiers say so,
So I, through frights, and threatnings, will affray
This dangerous venture: Let old wives report
I winck'd, and chose a husband: Cariola,
To thy knowne secree, I have given up
More than my life, my fame.

Cariola. Both shall be safe:
For I'll conceal this secret from the world
As warily as those that trade in poyson,
Keepe poyson from their children.

Duch. Thy protestation
Is ingenious and hearty: I beleve it,
Is Antonia come? Cariola. He attends you.

Duch. Good deare soule,
Leave me: but place thy self behind the Armes,
Where thou mayst over-heare us: with me good speed
For I am going into a Wildernesse,
Where I shall finde no path, nor friendly clew
To be my guide, I sent for you, Sit downe:
Take Pen and Incke, and write: are you ready?

Ant. Yes: Duch. What did I say?

Ant. That I should write somewhat.

Duch. Oh, I remember:
After this triumphs, and this large expence
It's fit (like thrifty husbands) we enquire
What's laid up for to morrow:

Ant. So please your beauteous Excellence. (sate.)

Duch. Beauteous? Indeed I thanke you: I look yong for your
You have tane my cares upon you.

Ant. I'll fetch your Grace the Particulars of your renew, and expence,

Duch. Oh, you are an upright deafer, but you mistooke,
For when I said I meant to make inquiry,

the Dutcheffe of Malfy.

What's laid up for to morrow : I did meane
What's laid up yonder for me.

Ant. Where? Duch. In Heaven. Some other
I am making my will (as 'tis fit Princes should
In perfect memory) and I pray Sir, tell me
Were not one better to make it smiling, thus?
Than in deep groanes, and terrible ghastly looks;
As if the gifts we parted with, procur'd
That violent distraction? Ant. Oh, much better.

Duch. If I had a husband now, this care were quit:
But I intend to make you Over-see;
What good deed, shall we first remember? say.

Ant. Begin with that good deed that first began iⁿ th world,
After mans creation, the Sacrament of marriage,
I'd have you provide for a good husband,
Give him all. Duch. All?

Ant. Yes, your excellent selfe.

Duch. In a winding-sheet? Ant. In a couple.

Duch. St. Winfred, that were a strange will.

Ant. 'Twere strange if there were no will in you
To marry againe.

Duch. What doe you thinke of marriage?

Ant. I take't, as those that deny purgatory.
It locally containes, or heaven, or hell,
There's no third place in't.

Duch. How doe you affect it?

Ant. My banishment, feeding my melancholly,
Would often reason thus.

Duch. Pray let's heare it.

Ant. Say a man never marry, nor have children,
What takes that from him? only the bare name
Of being a father, or the weake delight
To see the little wanton, ride a cock-horse
Vpon a painted stieck, or heare him chatter
Like a tangle sterling.

Duch. Fye, fye, what's all this?
One of your eyes is blood-shot, use my Ring to't,
They say 'tis very soveraigne, 'twas my wedding Ring,
And I did vow never to part with it,
But to my second husband.

The Tragedy of

Ant. You have parted with it now.

Dutch. Yes, to helpe your eye-fight.

Ant. You have made me starke blinde.

Dutch. How?

Ant. There is a sawcy, and ambitious divell,
Is dancing in this circle.

Dutch. Remove him.

Ant. How?

Dutch. There needes small conjuration, when your finger
May doe it: thus, is it fit?

Ant. What said you?

Dutch. Sir,

This goodly rooffe of yours, is too low built,

I cannot stand upright in't, nor discourse,

Without I raise it higher: raise your selfe,

Or if you please, my hand to helpe you: so.

Ant. Ambition (Madam) is a great mans madnes.

That is not kept in chaines, and close-pent-rooms,

But in faire lightfome lodgings, and is girt

With the wild noise of prattling visitants,

Which makes it lunatique, beyond all cure,

Conceive not, I am so stupid, but I ayme

Whereto your favours tend: But he's a foole

That (being a cold) would thrust his hands i'th fire

To warme them.

Dutch. So, now the ground's broke.

You may discover what a wealthy Mine

I make you I ord of,

Ant. Oh my unworthinesse.

Dutch. You were ill to sell your selfe

This darkning of your worth, is not like that

Which trades-men use i'th City, their false lights

Are to rid bad wares off: and I must tell you

If you would know where breathes a compleat man,

(I speake it without flattery) turne your eyes

And progresse through your selfe.

Ant. Were there nor heaven nor hell,

I should be honest: I have long serv'd vertues

And nev'r tane wages of her.

Dutch. Now she paises it.

The misery of us, that are borne great,

We are forc'd to woe, because none dare woe us:

And as a Tyrant doubles with his words,

And fearefully equivocates: so we

Are forced to expresse our violent passions

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

In riddles, and in dreames, and leave the path
Of simple vertue, which was never made
To seeme the thing it is not: Go, go brag
You have left me heartlesse, mine is in your bosome,
I hope 'twill multiply love there: You doe tremble:
Make not your heart so dead a peece of flesh
To feare, more than to love me: Sir, be confident,
What is't distracts you? This is flesh, and blood (Sir)
'Tis not the figure cut in Allabaster
Kneeles at my husbands Tombe: Awake, awake (man)
I do here put off all vaine ceremony,
And only do appeare to you, a yong Widow
That claimes you for her husband, and like a Widow,
I use but halfe a blush in't. Ant. Truth speake for me,
I will remaine the constant Sanctuary
Of your good name.

Dutch. I thank you (gentle love)
And cause you shall not come to me, in debt
(Being now my Steward) here upon your lips
I signe your Quietus: This you should have beg'd now,
I have seene children oft eate sweet-meates thus,
As fearefull to devoure them too soone.

Ant. But for your Brothers?

Dutch. Do not thinke of them,
All discord, without this circumstance,
Is only to be pittied, and not fear'd:
Yet, should they know it, time will easily
Scatter the tempest.

Ant. These words should be mine,
And all the parts you have spoke, if some part of it
Would not have favour'd flattery.

Dutch. Kneele. Ant. Hah.

Dutch. Be not amaz'd, this woman's of my Counsell;
I have heard Lawyers say, a contract in a Chamber,
(Per verba presenti) is absolute marriage:
Blesse (Heaven) this sacred Gordian, which, let violence
Never untwine.

Ant. And may our sweet affections (like the Sphæares)
Be still in motion.

Dutch. Quickning, and make

The Tragedy of

The like soft Musique.

Ant. That we may imitate the loving Palmes
(Best Embleme of a peacefull marriage)
That nev'r bore fruit divided.

Duch. What can the Church force more?

Ant. That Fortune may not know an accident
Either of joy, or sorrow, to divide
Our fixed wishes.

Duch. How can the Church Build faster?
We now are man and wife, and 'tis the Church
That must but eccho this: Maid, stand apart,
I now am blinde.

Ant. What's your conceit in this?

Duch. I would have you lead your fortune by the hand,
Unto your mariage bed:
(You speake in me this, for we now are one)
We'll only lie, and talke together, and plot
T'appease my humorous kindred; and if you please
(Like the old tale, in Alexander and Lodowicke)
Lay a naked sword betweene us, keepe us chaste:
Oh, let me shrowd my blinthes in your bosome,
Since 'tis the treasury of all my secrets.

Car. Whether the spirit of greatness, or of woman
Raigne most in her, I know not, but it shewes
A fearfull madnes, I owe her much of pity.

Exeunt.

ACTUS II. SCENA I

Bosola, Castfranchio, an Old Lady, Antonio, Delio, Dutchesse, Roderico, Grisolan

Bos. You say you would faine be taken for an eminent Courtier?

Cast. 'Tis the very maine of my ambition.

Bos. Let me see, you have a reasonable good face for't already
And your night-cap expressees your eares sufficient largely,
I would have you learne to twirle the strings of your band with a
Good grace; and in a set speech (at th'end of every sentence)
To hum, three or four times, or blow your nose (till it smart again)
To recover your memory, when you come to be a president in Criminall causes, if you smile upon a prisoner, hang him, but if
You frowne upon him, and threaten him, let him be sure to scape
The Gallowes. Cast. I would be a very many president.

the Dutcheffe of Malby.

Bos. Do not sup a nights, 'twill beget you an admirable wit.

Cas. Rather it would make me have a good stomack to quarell.
For they say, your roaring Boyes eat meat seldome,
And that makes them so valiant:
But how shall I know whether the people take me
For an eminent fellow.

Bos. I will teach a trick to know it,
Give out you lye a dying, and if you
Heare the common people curse you,
Be sure you are taken for one of the prime night-caps,
You come from painting now? Old La. From what?

Bos. Why, from your scurvy face-physicke,
To behold thee not painted inclines somewhat neere
A miracle: These in thy face here, were deep nuts,
And soule sloughes the last progresse:
There was a Lady in France, that having had the small poockes,
Flead the Skinne off her face, to make it more leuell;
And whereas before she look't like a Nutmeg-grater,
After she resembled an abortive hedge-hog,

Old La. Do you call this painting?

Bos. No, no, but you call carreeuing of an old
Morphew'd Lady, to make her dissembogue againe,
There's strong-cast phraze to your plastique.

Old La. It seemes you are well acquainted with my closet?

Bos. One would suspect it for a shop of witch-craft,
To finde in it the fat of Serpents; spawne of Snakes, Jewes spittle,
And their yong childrens ordure, and all these for the face:
I would sooner eat a dead pigeon, taken from the soles of the feet
Of one sicke of the plague, than kisse one of you fasting:
Here are two of you, whose sin of your youth, is the very Patrimony of the Physician, makes him renew his Foot-cloth with the Spring, and change his High-priz'd curtzean with the fall of the leafe:
I doe wonder you doe not loath your selves,
Observe my meditation now:
What thing is in this outward forme of man
To be below'd? we account it ominous,
If Nature doe produce a Colts or Lambe,
A Fawne, or Goat: in any limbe resembling
A man; and si, e from't as a prodigy.

The Tragedy of

Man stands amaz'd to see his deformity,
In any other Creature but himselfe.
But in our owne flesh, though we beare diseases
Which have their true names, only tane from beasts,
As the most ulcerous Woolfe, and swinish Meazeall;
Though we are eaten up of lice, and wormes,
And though continually we beare about us
A rotten and dead body, we delight
To hide it in rich tiffle all our feare,
(Nay all our terror) is least our Physician
Should put us in the ground, to be made sweet.
Your wife's gone to Rome: you two couple, and get you
To the wells at Leuca, to recover your aches.
I have other worke on foot: I observe our Dutchesse
Is sicke a dayes, she puykes, her stom.cke seethes,
The fips of her eye-lids, looke most teeming blew,
She waines i'th'cheeke, and waxes fat i'th'flanke;
And (contrary to our Italian fashion)
Weares a looke bodied gowne, there's somewhat in't,
I have a tricke may chance discover it
(A pretty one) I have bought some Apricocks,
The first our Spring yeelds. Des. And so long since married?
You amaze me.

Ans. Let me seale your lips for ever,
For did I thinke, that any thing but th'ayre,
Cou'd carry these words from you, I should wish
You had no breath at all: Now Sir, in your contemplation?
You are studying to become a great wise fellow?

Bos. Oh Sir, the opinion of wisdom, is a foule terror,
That runs all over a mans body: if simplicity
Direct us to have no evill, it directs us to a happy
Being: For the subtlest folly proceeds from the Subtlest wisdom: Let me be simply honest.

Ans. I doe understand your in-side. Bos. Do you so?

Ans. Because you would not seeme to appeare to th' world,
Puff'd up with your preferment: You continue
This out of fashion melancholly, leave it, leave it.

Bos. Give me leave to be honest in any phrase, in any Complement whatsoever, shall I confesse my selfe to you?
I looke no higher than I can reach:

They

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

They are the gods, that must ride on winged horses,
A Lawyers mule of a slow pace, will both suite
My disposition, and businessse : For (marke me)
When a mans mind rides faster than his horse can gallop,
They quickly both tyre.

Ans. You would looke up to Heaven, but I thinke
The divell, that rules i'th'aire, stands in your light,

Bos. Oh (Sir) you are Lord of the ascendant,
Chiefe man with the Dutchesse, a Duke was your Cosen German remov'd : Say you were lineally
Descended from King Pippin, or he himselfe,
What of this ? search the heads of the greatest rivers in
The world, you shall finde them but bubbles of water :
Some would thinke the soules of Princes were brought Forth by some more weighty cause, than those of meaner persons.
They are deceiv'd, there's the same hand to them :
The like passions sway them, the same reason, that makes
A Vicar to goe to law for a tithe pig,
And undoe his neighbours, makes them spoile
A whole Province, and batter downe goodly
Cities, with the Canon.

Duch. Youe time Antonio, do I not grow fat ?
I am exceeding short-winded : Bosola,
I would have you (sir) provide for me a Litter,
Such a one as the Dutchesse of Florence rode in.

Bos. The Dutchesse us'd one when she was great with childe.

Duch. I thinke she did : come hither, mend my russe,
Here, when ? thou art such a tedious Lady ; and
Thy breath smells of Lemmon pills, woud thou hadst done,
Shall I swound under thy fingers ? I am
So troubled with the mother. Bos. I feare too much.

Duch. I have heard you say, that the French Courtiers
Weare their Hats on fore the King. Ans. I have seene it.

Duch. In the presence ? Ans. Yes :
Why should not we bring up that fashion ?
'Tis ceremony more than duty, that consists
In the remooving of a piece of felt :
Be you the example to the rest o'th' Court,
Put on your hat first.

Ans. You must pardon me :

The Tragedy of

I have scene, in colder countries than in France,
Nobles stand bare to th' Prince, and the distinction
My thought shew'd reverently.

Bos. I have a present for your Grace.

Duch. For me sir? Bos. Apricocks (Madame)

Duch. O sit, where are they? Bos. Good, her colour rises.
I have heard of none to yet.

Duch. Indeed I thank you: they are wondrous faire ones:
What an unskilfull fellow is our Gardiner?

We shall have none this moneth.

Bos. Will not your Grace part them?

Duch. No, they taste of muske (metheinks) indeed they doe:

Bos. I know none yet I with your Grace had partle 'em:

Duch. Why? Bos. I forgot to tell you the knave Gardiner,
(only to raise his profit by them the sooner)

Did ripen them in horse-dung. Duch. O you jest:

You shall judge: pray taste one.

I doe not love the fruit. Duch. Sir you are loath

To rob us of our dainties: 'tis a delicate fruit,

They say they are restorative? Bos. 'Tis a pretty

Art: this grafting. Duch. 'Tis so: bettering of nature.

Bos. To make rapping grow upon a crab,

A dampson on a black-thorne: how greedily she eats them?

A whirlewinde strike off their bawd-furthingalls,

For, but for that, and the loose-bodied powne,

I should have discover'd apparently

The yong spring-hall cutting a caper in her belly.

Duch. I thank you (Bos.) they were right good ones,

If they do not make me sicke. Bos. How now Madame?

Duch. This Greene fruit and my stomacke are not friends,

How they swell me?

Bos. Nay, you are too much swell'd already.

Duch. O, I am in an extreme cold sweat.

Bos. I am very sorry.

Duch. Lights to my Chamber: O, good Antonio,

I feare I am undone. Exit Dutchesse.

Del. Lights there, lights.

Ant. O my trusty Del., we are lost:

I feare she's false in labour: and there's left

No time for her remove.

the Dutchesse of Malisy.

Del. Have you prepar'd
Those Ladies to attend her? and procure
That politique life conveyance for the Mid-wife
Your Dutchesse plotted. Ans. I have.

Del. Make use then of this forc'd occasion:
Give out that Bosola hath poison'd her
With these Apricocks: that will give some colour
For her keeping close. Ans. Fye, fye, the Physicians
Will then flocke to her.

Del. For that you may pretend
She'll use some prepar'd Antidote of her owne,
Least the Physicians should repoy for her.

Ans. I am lost in amazement: I know not what to thinke on't. Ex.

SCENA II.

Bosola, Old Lady, Aminta, Rodrigo, Grisolan

Servants, Dello, Curiald

Bos. So so: there's no question but her teachevies
And most vulturous eading of the Apricocks, are apparant
Signes of breeding, now? Old La. I am in halfe (Sir)

Bos. There was a yong waiting-woman, had a monstrous desire
To see the Glasse-house. Old La. Nay pray see me go

Bos. And it was only to know what strange instrument it was
Should swell up a Glasse to the fashion of a womans belly.

Old La. I will heare no more of the Glasse-house
You are still abusing women.

Bos. Who I? no, only (by the way now and then) mention
Your frailties. The Orange tree beare ripe and Greene
Fruit, and blossoms altogether: and some of you give entertainment
For pure love: but more, for more preceiours reward: The lusty
Spring smells well: but drooping Autumn taste well: if we Have the same golden showres, that rained in the time of Jupiter
The Thunderer, you have the same Diana: Rills to hold up their Laps to receive them: dost thou never study the Metamorphoses?

Old La. What's that (Sir)

Bos. Why, to know the trickes how to make a many loves meete
In one center: Go, go: give your sonnes such good counsell,
Tell them, that the divell takes delight to hang a womans piddle
Like a tall rusty watch, that the cannot make time now
The time passes. Ans. Stay up the Court, please.

The Tragedy of

Rod. Why fir? what's the danger?

Ans. Shut up the posterns presently: and call

All the Officers o'th Court.

Gris. I shall instantly.

Ans. Who keeps the key o'th Park-gate?

Rod. Forbosco. Ans. Let him bring't presently.

Servant. Oh, Gentlemen o'th Court, the fowlest treason.

Bos. If that these Apricocks should be poyson'd now;
Without my knowledge.

Serv. There was taken even now a Switzer
In the Dutchesse Bed-chamber.

2 Serv. A Switzer?

Serv. With a pistoll in his great cod-piece.

Bos. Ha, ha, ha. Serv. The cod-piece was the case fort.

2 Serv. There was a cunning traitor.

Who would have search'd his cod-piece?

Serv. True, if he had kept out of the Ladies chambers:

And all the mowldes of his buttons, were leaden bullets.

2 Ser. Oh wicked Caniball: a fire-lock in's cod-piece?

Serv. 'Twas a French plot upon my life.

2 Serv. To see what the divell can doe.

Ans. All the Officers here. Serv. We are. Ans. Gentlemen.

We have lost much plate you know: and but this evening

Jewels, to the value of foure thousand Duckars

Are missing in the Dutchesse Cabinet.

Are the gates shut? Serv. Yes.

Ans. 'Tis the Dutchesse pleasure

Each Officer be lock't into his chamber.

Till the Sun rising: and to send the keys

Of all their chests, and of their outward doores

Into her Bed-chamber: She is very sicke.

Rod. At her pleasure.

Ans. She intreats you tak't not ill: The innocent

Shall be the more appoy'd by it.

Bos. Gentleman o'th Wood-yard, where's your Switzer now?

Serv. By this hand 'twas credibly reported by one o'th Black-

Del. How fares it with the Dutchesse? (guard.

Ans. She's expos'd

Unto the worst of torture, paine and feare.

Del. Speake to her all happy comfort.

Ans. How I do play the foole with mine owne danger?

You are this night (deare friend) to possit to Rome.

the Dutcheffe of Malfy.

My life lies in your service. Del. Do not doubt me.

Ant. Oh, 'tis fare from me: and yet I see present me
Somewhat that looks like danger.

Del. Beleeve it,
'Tis but the shadow of your feare, no more:
How superstitiously we mind our evils?
The throwing downe Ale, or crossing of a Hare:
Bleeding at nose, the stumbling of a horse:
Or singing of a Crier: are of power
To daunt whole man in us: Sir, fare you well.

I wish you all the joyes of a blest father:
And (for my faith) lay this into your breast.
Old friends (like old swords) still are trusted best.

Carola. Sir, you are the happy father of a sonne.
Your wife commends him to you. Ant. Blessed comfort:
For Heaven sake send her well: He presently Goes a figure for's Nativity.

SCENA III.

Bosola, Antonio,

Bos. Sure I did heare a woman shriek: list, ha?
And the sound came (if I receiv'd it right)
From the Dutcheffe lodgings: there's some stratagem
In the confining all our Courtiers
To their severall wards: I must have part of it.
My Intelligence will friere else: List againe,
It may be 'twas the melancholly bird,
(Best friend of silence, and of solitarines)
The Owle, that schream'd so: ha?

Ant. I heard some noyse: whose there? what are thou? speak.

Bos. Antonio? Put not your face; nor body
To such a forc'd expression of feare,
I am Bosola your friend. Ant. Bosola?
(This Moale do's undermin me) heard you not
A noyse even now? Bos. From whence?

Ant. From the Dutcheffe lodging.

Bos. Not T: did you? Ant. I did, or else I dream'd.

Bos. Let's walke towards it.

Ant. No: It may be 'twas

But the rising of the wind. Bos. Very likely.
Methinks it is very cold, and yet you sweat.
You looke wildly.

Ant. I have bin setting a figure
For the Dutchesse Jewels;

Bos. Ah, and how falls your question?
Do you find it radical?

Ant. What's that to you?
'Tis rather to be question'd what designe

(When all men were commanded to their lodgings)
Makes you a night-walker.

Bos. In sooth I'll tell you
Now all the Court's asleepe; I thought the diuill

Had leaft to doe here; I came to lye my prayers,
And if it doe offend you, I doe so,

You are a fine Courtier.
Ant. This fellow will undo me:

You gave the Dutchesse Apricocks to day,
Pray heaven they were not poyson'd?

Bos. Poyson'd? a Spanish fig
For the imputation.

Ant. Traitors are ever confident,
Till they are discover'd: There were Jewels stolne too

In my conceit, none are to be suspected
More than your selfe.

Bos. You are a false Steward.
Ant. Sawey slave: Ile pull thee up by the footes.

Bos. May be the ruine will crush you to peeces.
Ant. You are an impudent knave indeed (sir).

Are you scarce warme, and doe you shew your tung?
You Libell well (sir.)

Bos. No sir,
Copy it out, and I will set my hand to't.

Ant. My nose bleeds: One that were superstitious, would count
This ominous, when it meetly comes by chance.

Two letters, that are wrought here for my name
Are drown'd in blood; mee're accident for you (sir) Ile take order:

Ith morne you shall be safe; tis that must colour
Her lying in; sir, this done you passe not:

I doe not hold it fit, that you come neere
The Dutchesse lodgings, till you have quite your selfe.

The Great are like the Base; nay, they are the same,
When they seeke shamefull waies, to avoid shame.

Bos. Antonio here about, did drop a Paper,

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Some of your helpe (false friend) oh, here it is:
What's here? a childes Nativity calculated?

*The Dutchesse was deliver'd of a Sonne, twene the houres twelve and one, in the night: Anno Dom: 1504, (that's this year)
decimo nono Decembris, (that's this night) taken according to the Meridian of Malfy (that's our Dutchesse, happy discovery.)
the Lord of the first house being combust in the ascendant, signifies short life: and Mars being in a human signe, joyn'd to the saile of the Dragon, in the eighth house, doth threaten a violent death;
Cetera non scrutantur.*

Why now 'tis most apparant: This precise fellow
Is the Dutchesse Bawde: I have it to my wish:
This is a parcell of Intelligency
Our Courtiers were cal'd up for? It needes must follow,
That I must be committed, on pretence
Of poisoning her: which I'll endure, and laugh at:
If one could finde the father now: but that
Time will discover; Old Castruchio
Ith morning posts to Rome; by him I'll send
A Letter, that shall make her brothers Galls
Ore-flow their Livers, this was a thirly way,
*Though lust doe maske in neer's so strange disguise,
She's oft found witty, but is never wise.*

SCENA IIII.

Cardinal, and Julia, Servant, and Delio.

Card. Sit: thou art my best of wishes, prethee tell me
What tricke didst thou invent to come to Rome,
Without thy husband? Jul. Why (my Lord) I told him
I came to visit an old Anchorite
Here, for devotion. Card. Thou art a witty false one;
I meant to him. Jul. You have prevailed with me
Beyond my strongest thoughts: I would not now
Find you inconstant. Card. Do not put thy selfe
To such a voluntary torture, which proceeds
Out of your owne guilt. Jul. (How my) Lord?

Card. You feare my constancy, because you have approv'd.
Those giddy and wild turning in your selfe.

Jul. Did you ere find them?

Card. Sooth generally for women;
A man might strive to make glasse male-able,

The Tragedy of

Ere he should make them fixed, Jul. So, (my Lord)

Card. We had need go borrow that fantastique glasse
Invented by Galileo the Florentine,
To view another spacious world i'th Moone,
And look to finde a constant woman there.

Jul. This is very well (my Lord.)

Card. Why do you weep?

Are teares your justification? the selfesame teares
Will fall into your husbands bosome, (Lady)
With a loud protestation, that you love him
Above the world: Come, I'll love you wisely,
That jealously, since I am very certaine
You cannot make me cuckold. Jul. I'll go home
To my husband. Card. You may thanke me Lady,
I have taken you off your melancholly pearch,
Boare you upon my fist, and shew'd you game,
And let you flye at it: I prethee kisse me,
When thou was't with thy husband, thou was't watcht
Like a tame Elephant: (still you are to thanke me)
Thou hadst only kisses from him, and high feeding,
But what delight was that? 'twas just like one
That hath a little fingring on the Lute,
Yet cannot tune it: (still you are to thanke me.)

Jul. You told me of a piteous wound i'th heart,
And a sickle liver, when you wooed me first,
And spake like one in th sickle. Card. Who's that?

Rest firme, for my affection to thee,
Lightning moves slow to't. Serv. Madam a Gentleman
That's come poste from Massy, desires to see you.

Car. Let him enter, I'll withdraw. Ex. Ser. He saies,
Your husband (old Castruchio) is come to Rome,
Most pittifully ty'd with riding post.

Jul. Signior Delio? 'tis one of my old Suitors.

Del. I was bold and come to see you.

Jul. Sir, you are welcome. Del. Do you lie here?

Jul. Sure, your owne experience

Will satisfie you now, our Romane Prelates
Do not keep lodging for Ladies. Del. Very well:

I have brought you no commendations from your husband,

For I know none by him. Jul. I heare he's come to Rome.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Del. I never knew man, and beast, of a horse, and a knight,
So weary of each other, if he had had a good back,
He would have undertooke to have borne his horse,
His breech was so pitifully sore. Ful. Your laughter,
Is my pitty. Del. Lady, I know not whether

You want mony, but I have brought you some.

Ful. From my husband?

Del. No, from mine own allowance.

Ful. I must heare the condition ere I be bound to take it.

Del. Look on't, 'tis gold, hath it not a fine colour?

Ful. I have a Bird more beautifull.

Del. Try the sound on't. Ful. A Lute-string far exceeds it,
It hath no smell, like Cassia, or Cyvir,
Nor is it phisicall, though some fond Doctors
Perswade us, seeth's in Cullisses, I'll tell you,
This is a Creature bred by——

Ser. Your husband's come,
Hath deliver'd a letter to the Duke of Calabria, that,
To my thinking hath put him out of his wits.

Ful. Sir, you heare,
Pray let me know your businesse, and your suite,
As briefly as can be.

Del. With good speed, I would wish you
(At such time, as you are non-resident
With your husband) my Mistris.

Ful. Sir, Ile go aske my husband if I shall,
And straight returne your answer. Exit.

Del. Very fine, Is this her wit, or honesty that speak thus?
I heard one say the Duke was highly mov'd
With a letter sent from Malfy: I do feare

Antonio is betray'd: how fearfully
Shewes his ambition now, (unfortunate Fortune)

“They passe through whirle-pooles, and deep wos do shun,
Who the event weigh, ere the action's done.

SCENA V.

Cardinall, and Ferdinand, with a letter.

Ferd. I have this night dig'd up a man-darke.

Car. Say you? Ferd. And I am grown mad with't.

Car. What's the progedy?

The Tragedy of

Ferd. Read there, a sister damn'd, she's loose i'th hilt: A
Grown a notorious strumpet.

Card. Speake lower. Ferd. Lower?
Rogues do not whisper't now, but seeke to publish't,
(As servants do the bounty of their Lords)
Aloud; and with a covetous searching eye,
To marke who note them: Oh confusion seale her,
She hath had most cunning bawdes to serve her turne,
And more secure conveyances for lust,
Than Townes of garrison for service.

Card. Is't possible?
Can this be certaine? Ferd. Rubarbe, oh for rubarbe
To purge this choller, here's the cursed day.

To prompt my memory: and here't shall sticke
Till of her bleeding heart I make a sponge
To wipe it out. Card. Why doe you make your selfe
So wild a tempest? Ferd. Would I could be one,

That I might toss her pallace 'bout her eates,
Root up her goodly forrests, blast her meades,
And lay her generall territory as waste,

As she hath done her honors. Card. Shall our blood?
(The royall blood of Arragon, and Castile)

Be thus attainted? Ferd. Apply desperate physicks,
We must not now use Balsamm, but fire,

The smarting cupping-glasse, for that's the meane
To purge infected blood, (such blood as hers:)

There is a kinde of pittie in mine eye,
I'll give it to my hand-kercher; and now 'tis here,

I'll bequeath this to her Bastard. Card. What to doe?
Ferd. Why to make soft lint for his mothers wounds,

When I have hewed her to peeces.

Card. Curs'd creature,
Unequall nature, to place womens hearts
So farre upon the left-side. Ferd. Foolish men,

That ere will trust their honor in a Barke,
Made off so slight, weake bul-rush, as this woman,

Apt every minute to sinke it? Card. Thus Ignorance, when it hath purchas'd honor,
It cannot weild it.

Ferd. Me thinkes I see her laughing,
Excellent Hyenna, talke to me somewhat, quickly,

the Dartheffe of Malley.

Or my imagination will carry me
To see her in the shametull act of sinne. Card. With whom?

Ferd. Happily, with some strong thigh'd Bargeman?
Or one th' wood-yard, that can quoit the sledge,
Or toss the barre, or else some lovely Squire
That carries coles up to her private lodgings.

Card. You flye beyond your reason.

Ferd. Goto (Mistress.)

'Tis not your whores milke that can quench my wild-fire,
But your whores blood.

Card. How idly shewes this rage?
Which carries you, as men convey'd by witches, through the ayre,
On violent whirle-windes, this intemperate noise,
Fitly resembles deafe mens shrill discourse,
Who talke aloud, thinking all other men
To have their imperfection. Ferd. Have not you

My palsey? Card. Yes, I can be angry
Without this rupture, there is not in nature
A thing that makes man so deform'd, so beastly,
As doth intemperate anger: chide your selfe,
You have divers men, who never yet exprest
Their strong desire of rest, but by unrest,
By vexing of themselves: Come, put your selfe
In tune. Ferd. So, I will only study to seeme

The thing I am not: I could kill her now,
In you, or in my selfe, for I doe thinke
It is some sinne in us, Heaven doth revenge
By her. Card. Are you starke mad?

Ferd. I would have their bodies
Burnt in a cole-pit, with the vantage stop'd,
That their curs'd smoake might not ascend to Heaven:
Or dip the sheetes they lie in, in pitch or sulphure,
Wrap them in't, and then light them like a match:
O else to boyle their Bastard to a cullisse,
And giv'this leacherous father, to renew
The sinne of his backe.

Card. Ile leave you. Ferd. Nay, I have done,
I am confident, had I bin damn'd in hell,
And should have heard of this, it would have put me
Into a cold sweat: In, in, Ile go sleepe,

The Tragedy of

Till I know who leapes my sister, I'll not stirre:
That knowne, I'll finde Scorpions to sting my whips.
And fix her in a generall eclipse.

ACTUS III. SCENA I.

Antonio, and Delio, Dutchesse, Ferdinand, Bosola,

Ant. Our noble friend (my most beloved Delio)

Oh, You have bin a stranger long at Court,
Came you along with the Lord Ferdinand?

Del. I did sir, and how fares your noble Dutchesse

Ant. Right fortunately well: She's an excellent
Feeder of pedegrees: since you last saw her,
She hath had two children more, a sonne and daughter.

Del. Methinkes 'twas yesterday: Let me but wink,
And not behold your face, which to mine eye
Is somewhat leaner, verily I should dreame
It were within this halfe houre.

Ant. You have not beene in Law (friend Delio)
Nor in prison, nor a suitor at the Court,
Nor beg'd the reversion of some great mans place,
Nor troubled with an old wife, which doth make
Your time so insensibly hasten. Del. Pray sir tell me,

Hath not this newes arriv'd yet to the eare
Of the Lord Cardinall? Ant. I feare it hath,
The Lord Ferdinand (that's newly come to Court)
Doth beare himselfe right dangerously. Del. Pray why?

Ant. He is so quiet, that he seemes to sleepe
The tempest out (as Dormice do in winter).
Those houses that are haunted, are most still,
Till the divell be up. Del. What say the common people.

Ant. The common-rable, do directly say
She is a Strumpet. Del. And your graver heads, (Which would be politique) what censure they?

Ant. They do observe, I grow to infinite purchase
The left hand way, and all suppose the Dutchesse
Would amend it, if she could: For, say they Great Princes, though they grudge their Officers
Should have such large, and unconfined meanes
To get wealth under them, will not complaine.

the Dutcheffe of Malfy.

Lest thereby they should make them odious

Unto the people, for other obligation

Of love or marriage, betweene her and me,

They never dreame of. Del. The Lord Ferdinand

Is going to bed. Ferd. I'll instantly to bed,

For I am weary; I am to be-speak

A husband for you. Duch. For me sir? pray who is't?

Ferd. The great Count Malatesta. Duch. Fye upon him,

A Count? he's a meere sticke of Sugar-candy,

(You may looke quite thorough him) when I choose

A husband, I will marry for your honor.

Ferd. You shall do well in't: How is't (worthy Antonio?)

Duch. But (Sir) I am to have private conference with you,

About a scandalous report, is spread

Touching mine honor. Ferd. Let me be ever deafe to't:

One of Pasquils paper-bullets, count calumny,

A pestilent ayre, which Princes Pallaces

Are seldome purg'd off: Yet, say that it were true,

I poure it in your bosome, my fix'd love,

Would strongly excuse, extenuate, nay deny

Faults where they apparant in you: Go be safe

In your owne innocency. Duch. Oh blest'd comfort.

This deadly ayre is purg'd.

Exeunt.

Ferd. Her guilt treads on

Hot burning cultures: Now Bosola,

How thrives our intelligence? Bos. Sir uncertainly,

'Tis rumour'd she hath had three bastards, but

By whom, we may go read i'th Starres. Ferd. Why some

Hold opinion, all things are written there.

Bos. Yes, if we could finde Spectacles to read them,

I do suspect, there hath bin some Sorcery

Us'd on the Dutcheffe. Ferd. Sorcery, to what purpose?

Bos. To make her dote on some desertles fellow.

She shames to acknowledge.

Ferd. Can your faith give way

To thinke there's power in potions, or in Charmes,

To make us love, whether we will or no?

Bos. Most certainly.

Ferd. Away, these are meere gulleries, horred things,

Invented by some cheating Mountebanckes

The Tragedy of

To abuse us : Do you thinke that herbes, or charmes
Can force the will ? Some trialls have bin made
In this foolish practise ; but the ingredients
Were lenative poysons, such as are of force
To make the patient mad ; and straight the witch
Sweares (by equivocation, they are in love.
The witch-craft lies in herrancke blood : this night
I will force confession from her : You told me
You had got (within these two dayes) a falsē key
Into her Bed-chamber. Bos. I have.

Ferd. As I would wish.

Bos. What doe you intend to do ? Ferd. Can you ghesse ?

Bos. No. Ferd. Do not aske then :

He that can compasse me, and know my drifts,
May say he hath put a girdle 'bout the world,
And sounded all her quick-sands. Bos. I doe not

Thinke so. Ferd. What do you thinke then, pray ;

Bos. That you are

Your owne Chronicle too much : and grossly

Flatter your selfe. Ferd. Give me thy hand, I thanke thee :

I never gave Pension but to flatterers,

Till I entertained thee : farewell.

*That friends a great mans ruine strongly checks,
Who railes into his beliefs, all his defects.*

SCENA II.

Dutcheffe, Antonio, Cariola, Ferdinand, Bosola, Officers.

Dutch. Bring me the Casket hither, and the Glasse ;
You get no lodging here, to night (my Lord.)

Ant. Indeed I must perswade one. Dutch. Very good :

I hope in time 'twill grow into a custome,

That Noble men shall come with cap and knee,

To purchase a nights lodging of their wives.

Ant. I must lye here.

Dutch. Must ? you are a Lord of mis-rule.

Ant. Indeed, my rule is only in the night.

Dutch. To what use will you put me ?

Ant. We'll sleep together.

Dutch. Alas, what pleasure can two Lovers find in sleepe ?

Car. My Lord, I lye with her often : and I know

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Sh'll much disquiet you.

Ant. See, you are complain'd of.

Car. For she's the sprawling bedfellow.

Ant. I shall like her the better for that.

Car. Sir, shall I aske you a question?

Ant. I pray thee Car.

Car. Wherefore still when you lye with my Lady

Do you rise so early?

Count the Clocks of time?

Are glad when their task's ended?

Ant. Nay, that's but one.

To draw her Chariot: I must have another.

When wilt thou marry?

Ant. O he upon this single life forgoit.

We read how Daphne, for her peevish flight

Became a fruitlesse Bay-tree:

To the pale empty Reede:

Was frozen into Marble: whereas those

Which married, or lov'd kind unto their friends

Were, by a gracious influence, manhap'd

Into the Olive, Pomgranet, Mulbery:

Became Flowers, precious Stones, or eminent Starres.

Car. This is a vaine Poetry: but I pray you tell me

If there were propos'd me, wisdom, riches, and beauty

In three severall young men, which should I choose?

Ant. 'Tis a hard question: This was Paris, he

And he was blind in't, and there was great cause

For how was't possible he should judge right?

Having three amorous Goddesses in view,

And they starke naked: 'twas a Motion

Were able to benight the apprehension

Of the severest Counsellor of Europe.

Now I looke on both your faces, so well form'd;

It puts me in minde of a question, I would aske

Car. What is't?

Ant. I doe wonder why hard-favour'd Ladies

For the most part, keep worse favour'd waiting women

To attend them, and cannot endure false ones.

Dutch. Oh, that's soone answer'd.

Did you ever in your life know an ill Palmer?

Desire to have his dwelling next doore to the shop
Of an excellent Picture-maker: it would disgrace
His face-making, and undo him: I prethee
VVhen were we merry? my haire rangles.

Ant. Pray-thee, Carriola, let's scale forth the room,
And let her talke to her selfe: I have divers times
Served her tholles, when she had chafed extremely.
I love to see her angry: Carriola.

Dut. Dosth not the colour of my haire 'gin to change?
VVhen I wake gray, I shall have all the Court
Powder their haire; with Arras, to be like me:
You have cause to love me, I entered into my heart
Before you would do much else so call for the keyes.
We shall one day have my brother's sake you napping:
Me thinkes his Presence (bring now in Court)
Should make you keep your own bed: but you'll say
Love mixt with feare, is sweetest: Ele assure you
You shall get no more children till my brother
Consent to bee your brother: have you lost your tongue?
For know whether I am dooub'd to live, or die,
I can do both like a Prince. Ferdinand gives her a Ring.

Ferd. Dischen, quickly:
Vertue, where art thou hid? what hideous thing
Is it, that doth clip thee?

Dut. Pray, sir, heare me.
Ferd. Or is it true, thou art but a bare name,
And no essentiall thing?

Dut. Sit, sir.
Ferd. Do not speake.
Dut. No, sir, haile you.
I will plant my soule in mine eares, to heare you.

Ferd. Oh must imperfect sight of humane reason;
That mak'th so unhappy, to fore-see
What we can least prevent: Pursue thy wishes,
And glory in them: there's in frame no comfort,
But to be past all bounds, and sense of shame.

Dut. I pray, sir, heare me: I am married.

Dut. Happily, not to your liking: but for that
Alas: your sheeres do come untimely now

To clip the birds wings, that's already flowne:
VVill you see my Husband?
Could change eyes with a Basilisquent.

Dut. Sure, you came hither
By his confederacy.

Ferd. The howling of a VVolf

the Dutchesse of Malfi.

Is musicke to the (screach-Owle) pretties peace
What ere thou art, that hast enjoy'd my sister,
(For I am sure thou heardst me) for mine owne sake
Let me not know thee: I came hither, prepar'd
To worke thy discovery: yet am now perswaded
It would beget so violent effects

As would damne us both: I would not for ten millions
I had beheld thee; therefore use all meanes.

I never may have knowledge of thy name:
Enjoy thy lust still, and a wretched life,

On that condition: and for thee (wilde woman)
If thou doe with thy Leacher may grow old

In thy Embracements, I would have thee build
Such a roome for him as our Anchorites

To holier use inhabit: Let not the Sun
Shine on him, till he's dead: Let Dogs and Monkeys

Only converse with him, and such dumbe things
To whom nature denies use, to sound his name.

Doe not keepe a Parauero, lest she learne it;
If thou doe love him, cut out thine owne tongue

Lest it bewray him.

Dutch. Why might not I marry?

I have not gone about, in this, to create
Any new world; or custome.

Ferd. Thou art undone,
And thou hast taine that mally fleece of lead
That hid thy husbands bones, and sounded it

About my heart. Dutch. Mine bleedes for t.

Ferd. Thine? thy heart?
What should I name t, unless a hollow bullet
Fill'd with unquenchable wild-fire?

Dutch. You are, in this
Too strict; and were you not my Princely brother
I would say too wilfull: My reputation

Is safe. Ferd. Dost thou know what reputation is,
I'll tell thee to small purpose, since th' instruction

Comes now too late.

Upon a time Reputation, Love, and Death,
Would travell o're the world: and it was concluded
That thy should part, and take three severall wayes

Death told them, they should find him in great battails:

The Tragedy of

Or Cities plagu'd with plagues: Love gives them counsell,
To enquire for him 'mongst ambitious shepherds,
Where downies were not talkt of: and sometimes
'Mongst quier kindred, that had nothing left
By their dead Parents: stay (quoth Reputation)
Do not forsake me: for it is my nature
If once I part from any man I meet
I am never found againe: And so, for you
You have shooke hands with Reputation,
And made him invisible: So fare you well.
I will never see you more. Dutch. Why should only I,
Of all the other Princes of the World
Be cas'd up, like a holy Relique? I have youth,
And a little beauty.

Ferd. So you have some Virgins,
That are Witches: I will never see thee more. Exit.

Dutch. You saw this apparition,

Enter Antonio with a Pistol.

Ant. Yes; we are
Betraid; how came he hither I should turne
This to thee, for that. Car. Pray fir doe: and when
That you have cleft my heart, you shall reade there,
Mine innocence. Dutch. That Gallery gave him entrance.

Ant. I would this terrible thing would come againe,
That (standing on my guard) I might relate
My warrantable love: ha, what means this?

Dutch. He left this with me. She shewes the panyard.

Ant. And it seemes, did wish
You would use it on your selfe. Dutch. His action
Seem'd to intend so much. Ant. This hath a handle to't,
As well as a point, turne it towards him,
And so fasten the keene edge in his raneke Gall:
How now? who knocks? more Earthquakes?

Dutch. I stand
As if a Myne, beneath my feet, were ready
To be blowne up. Car. 'Tis Bosola.

Dutch. Away,
Oh misery, me thinkes unjust actions
Should weare these masques, and curtaines; and not we:
You must instantly part hence, I have fashion'd it already. Ex. Ant.

the Dutcheffe of Malfy.

Bos. The Duke your brother is tane up in a whirle wind
Hath tooke horse; and's rid poste to Rome. Dutch. So late?

Bos. He told me, (as he mounted into th saddle)
You were undone. Dutch. Indeed, I am very neere it.

Bos. What's the matter?

Dutch. Antonio the master of our household
Hath dealt so falsely with me, in's accounts; :
My brother stood engag'd with me for mooney
Ta'ne up of certaine Neopolitane Jewes,
And Antonio let's the bonds be forfeit.

Bos. Strange, this is cunning. Dutch. And hereupon
My brothers Bills at Naples are protested
Answer: call up the Officers. Bos. I shall. Exit

Dutch. The place that you must flye to, is Ancona,
Hire a house there. I'll send after you
My treasures, and my Jewels: our weake safety
Runs upon ingenious wheeles; short fillables,
Must stand for periods: I must now accuse you
Of such a fained crime, as Tasso calls
Magnanima Mensogna: a Noble lye,
Cause it must shield our honors: harke they are coming.

Ans. Will your grace heare me?

Dutch. I have got well by you: you have yeilded me
A million of losse; I am like to inherit
The peoples curses for your Stewardship:
You had the trick, in Audie time to be sick,
Till I had sign'd your Quintus; and that cur'd you
Without helpe of a Doctor. Gentlemen,
I would have this man be an example to you all:
So shall you hold my favour: I pray let him
For h'as done that (alas) you would not thinke of,
And (because I intend to be rid of him)
I meane not to publish: use your fortune elsewhere.

Ans. I am strongly arm'd to brooke my over-throw,
As commonly men beare with a hard yeere:
I will not blame the cause on't; but doe thinke
The necessity of my malevolent starre
Procures this, not her humour: O the inconstant,
And rotten ground of service, you may see:
'Tis ev'n like him, that in a winter night

The Tragedy of

Takes a long slumber, ore a dying fire, and now aloft. As
As loath to part from't : yet parts thence are cold, As when he first late downe.

Dutch. We doe confiscate
(Towards the satisfying of your accounts)

All that you have. Ant. I am all yours : and 'tis very fit

All mine should be so. Dutch. So, fir : you have your Passe.

Ant. You may see (Gentlemen) what 'tis to serve
A Prince with body and soule.

Bos. Here's an example, for extortion ; what moisture is drawne out of the Sea, when foule weather comes ; powres downe, and runs into the Sea againe.

Dutch. I would know what are your opinions
Of this Antonio.

2 Off. He could not abide to see a Pigs head gaping,
I thought your Grace would finde him a Jew.

3 Off. I would you had bin Officers ; for your owne sake.

4 Off. You would have had more money.

1 Off. He stop'd his eares with blacke wooll ; and to those came
To him for money said he was thicke of hearing.

2 Off. Some said he was an hermophobite, for he could not abide

4 Off. How curvy proud would he looke, when the Treasury
Well, let him go.

1 Off. Yes, and the chippings of the Buttery flye after him,
To scowre his golden Chaine.

Dutch. Leave us : what doe you thinke of these?

Bos. That these are rogues ; that in's prosperity,
But to have waited on this Fortune, could have withstood

His dirty Stirrop rivited through their noses :

And follow'd after's Mule, like a Beare in a ring,

Would have prostituted their daughters to his lust :

Made their first-borne Intelligence : thought none happy

But such as were borne under his Platter :

And wore his Livery : and doe these lice drop off now ?

Well, never looke to have the like againe :

He hath left a sort of flatering rogues, behind him,

Their doome must follow : Princes pay flatterers,

In their owne money Flatterers dissemble their vices,

And they dissemble their vices, that's Justice :

Alas, poore Gentleman.

Dutch. Poore ? he hath amply fill'd his cofers,

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Bos. Sure he was too honest : Pluto the god of riches,
When he's sent (by Jupiter) to any man
He goes limping, to signify that wealth
That comes on gods name, comes slowly, but when he's sent
On the devills arrand, he rides post, and comes in by scuttles :
Let me shew you, what a most unvalu'd Jewell,
You have (in a wanton humour) throwne away,
To blesse the man shall finde him, He was an excellent
Courtier, and most faithfull, a souldier, that thought it
As beastly to know his owne value too little,
As devillish to acknowledge it too much,
Both his vertue and forme, deserv'd a faire better fortune :
His discourse rather delighted to judge it selfe, than shew it selfe.
His breast was fill'd with all perfection,
And yet it seem'd a private whispering roome,
It made so little noyse of it.

Dutch. But he was basely defended,

Bos. Will you make your selfe a mercenary herald,
Rather to examine mens pedegrees than vertues?
You shall want him,

For know an honest states-man to a Prince,
Is like a Cedar planted by a Spring,
The Spring bathes the trees root, the gracefull tree,
Rewards it with his shadow : you have not done so.
I would sooner swim to the Bermoothes on two Pollicins
Rotten bladders, ride together with an Inuelligencers heart-string
Than depend on so changeable a Princes favour.
Fare thee well (Antonio) since the malice of the world
Would needs downe with thee, it cannot be slid yet
That any ill happened unto thee, considering thy fall,
Was accompanied with vertue.

Dutch. Oh, you render me excellent musicke. Bos. Say you?

Dutch. This good one that you speake of, is my husband.

Bos. Do I not dreame? can this ambitious age
Have so much goodnes in't, as to prefer
Of wealth and painted honors? possible?

Dutch. I have had three children by him.

Bos. Fortunate Lady,

For you have made your private nuptiall bed
The humble and faire Seminary of peace,

The Tragedy of

No question but many an unbenefic'd Scholler
 Shall pray for you, for this deed, and rejoyce
 That some preferment in the world can yet
 Arise from merit. The virgins of your land
 (That have no dowries) shall hope your example
 Will raise them to rich husbands: Should you want
 Souldiers, twould make the very Turks and *Moor*s
 Turne Christians, and serve you for this act.
 Last, the neglected Poets of your time,
 In honour of this trophée of a man,
 Rais'd by that curious engine, (your white hand)
 Shall thank you, in your grave for't, and make that
 More reverend than all the Cabinets
 Of living Princes: For Antonin's
 His fame, shall likewise flow, from many a pen,
 When Herald's shall want coates, to sell to men.

Dut. As I taste comfort, in this friendly speech,
 So would I find concealment.

Bos. O the secret of my Prince,
 Which I will weare on th' inside of my heart.

Dut. You shall take charge of all my coyne, and jewels,
 And follow him, for he retires himself
 To Ancona.

Dut. Whether, within few dayes,
 I meane to follow thee.

Bos. Let me thinke
 I would wish your Grace to faigne a Pilgrimage
 To our Lady of Loreto, (scarcely seven leagues
 From faire Ancona) so may you depart
 Your Country, with more honour, and your flight
 Will seeme a Princely progresse, retaining
 Your usuall traine about you.

Dut. Sir, your direction
 Shall lead me by the hand.
 She were better progresse to the bathes
 At Leuca, or go visit the Spaw
 In Germany, for (if you will beleeve me)
 I do not like this jesting with religion.
 This faigned Pilgrimage.

Dutch. Thou art a superstitious foole,
 Prepare us instantly for our departure.
 Past sorrowes, let us moderately lament them.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

For those to come, seeke wisely to prevent them.

Exit.

Bos. A Polititian is the diuels quilted anvell,
He fashions all sinnes on him, and the blowes
Are never heard, he may worke in a Ladies Chamber,
(As here for proof) what rests, but I reveale
All to my Lord : Oh this base quality
Of Inteligencers ? why, every Quality i'th world
Prefers but gaine, or commendation :
Now for this act, I am certaine to be rais'd,
And men that paint weeds (to the life) are prais'd.

Exit.

SCENA III.

Cardinall, Ferdinand, Malatesta, Pescara, Silvio, Delio, Bosola.

Card. Must we turne Souldier then ?

M.d. The Emperor,

Hearing your worth that way, (ere you attain'd
This reverend garment) joynes you in commission
With the right fortunate souldier, the Marquis of Pescara,
And the famous Lanoy. Card. He that had the honor
Of taking the French King prisoner ? M.d. The same,

Here's a plot drawne, for a new Fortification.

At Naples. Ferd. This great Count Malatesta, I perceive
Hath got employment ? Del. No employment (my Lord)

A marginall note in the master-booke, that he is A voluntary Lord. Ferd. He's no souldier.

Del. He ha's worne gun-powder in's hollow tooth, for the Sil. He come to the leaguer, with a full intent, tooth-ache.

To eat fresh beefe, and garlick, meanes to stay
Till the sent be gon, and straight returne to Court.

Del. He hath read all the late service,

As the City Chronicle relates it.

And keepes two Painters going, only to expresse
Battailes in modell. Sil. Then he'll fight by the booke.

Del. By the Almanacke, I thinke

To choose good dayes, and shun the Criticall ;
That's his mistris skarfe. Sil. Yes, he protests
He would do much for that cassida.

Del. I thinke he would run away from a battaile
To save it from taking prisoner.

Sil. He is horribly afraid

Gun-powder will spoile the perfume out.

Del. I saw a Dutch-man breake his pate once

The Tragedy of

For calling him pot-gun, he made his head
Have a boare in't like a musket.

Sil. I would he had made a touch-hole to't.
He is indeed a guarded sumpter cloth,
Only for the remove of the Court.

Pes. Bosola arriv'd? what should be the businesse?
Some falling out amongst the Cardinals.
These factions amongst great men, they are like
Foxes, when their heads are divided
They carry fire in their tails, and all the Country
About them, goes to wracke fort. Sil. What's that Bosola?

Del. I knew him in Padua, a fantastickall schollar,
Like such, who study to know how many knots was in Hercules club, of what colour Achilles beard was,
Or whether Helior were not troubled with the tooth-ache:
He hath studied himselfe halfe bleare-ey'd, to know the True semetry of Cæsar's nose by a shooing-horne, and this
He did to gaine the name of a speculative man.

Pes. Marko Prince Ferdinand,
A very Salamander lives in s eye,
To mocke the eager violence of fire.

Sil. That Cardinal hath made more bad faces with his oppression,
Than ever Michael Angelo made good ones.
He lifts up's nose, like a foule Porcisse before a storme.

Pes. The Lord Ferdinand laughs.

Del. Like a deadly Canon,
That lightens ere it smoakes.

Pes. These are your true pangs of death,
The pangs of life, that struggle with great states-men.

Del. In such a deformed silence, witches whisper their charmes.

Card. Doth she make religion her riding hood
To keep her from the Sun and tempest?

Ferd. That: that damnes her: Methinkes her fault, and Beauty blended together, shew like leprosie,
The whiter, the fouler: I make it a question
Whether her beggerly brats were ever christned.

Card. I will instantly sollicite the state of Ancona
To have them banish'd. Ferd. You are for Lorenzo?
I shall not be at your Ceremony: fare you well.
Write to the Duke of Massy, my yong Nephew.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

She had by first husband, and acquaint him,
With's mothers honesty. Bos. I will.

Ferd. Antonio?

A slave that only smell'd of ink and counters,
And nev'r in's life, look'd like a gentleman,
But in the audit time; goe, goe presently,
Draw me out an hundred and fifty of our horse,
And meet me at the fort-bridge.

Two Pilgrimes to the Shrine of our Lady of Loretto.

Yet I have visited many. 2. The Cardinal of Arragon is, this day
To resigne his Cardinals hat, his sister
Dutchesse likewise is arriv'd to pay her
Vow of Pilgrimage, I expect a noble Ceremony.

1. Pilg. No question: — They come.

*Here the Ceremony of the Cardinals enstallment, in the habit of a Souldier perform'd in delivering up his crosse, hat, robes, and ring, as the Shrive; and investing him with sword, helmet, shield, and spurs:
Then Antonio, the Dutchesse, and their children, (having presented themselves at the Shrine) are (by a form of banishment in dumb-show expressed towards them by the Cardinal, and the State of Aragon) banished: During all which Ceremony, this Ditty is sung (to very solemn musick) by severall Church-men, and then*

Armes, and Flowers, deck thy story,

For thy famer eternall glory,

Adverse fortune ever sue thee,

No disastrous fate come nigh thee.

I alone will sing thy praises,

Whom to honor, vertue raises;

And thy study, that divine is,

Ben: to Marshal-discipline is:

Lay aside all those robes tie by thee,

Crowne thy arms with arms: they'll beautifie thee.

O worthy of worthiest name, adorn'd in this manner,

Leade bravely thy forces on, under war warlike banner;

O, mayst thou prove fortunate in all Marshall courses.

Guide thou still thy will, to arts, and forces:

*Victory attend thee nigh whilst fame sings loud thy powers, (showes
Triumphant conquest crown thy head, and blessings poure downe*

So great a Lady, would have match'd her selfe
Unto so meane a person? yet the Cardinall

1 Pilg. But I would aske what power hath this stare
Of Ancona, to determine of a free Prince?

2 Pilg. They are a free state sir, and her brother shew'd
How that the Pope fore-hearing of her loosenesse,
Hath seiz'd into the protection of the Church
The Dukedome, which she held as dowager.

1 Pilg. But by what justice? 2 Pilg. Sure I thinke by none,
Only her brothers instigation,

1 Pilg. What was it with such violence he took Off from her finger? 2 Pilg. 'Twas her wedding ring,
Which he vow'd shortly he would sacrifice
To his revenge. 1 Pilg. Alas, Antonio,
If that a man be thrust into a well,

No matter who sets hand to't, his owne weight
Will bring him sooner to th' bottome: Come, let's hence.
Fortune makes this conclusion generall,
"All things to helpe th' unhappy man to fall,

SCENA V.

Antonio, Dutcheffe, Children, Cariola, Servants, Rosola, Souldiers, with Friends.

Dutch. Banish'd Ancona? Ant. Yes, you see what power
Lightens in great mens breath. Dutch. Is all our traine
Shrunk to this poore remainder? Ant. These are poore men,
(Which have got little in your service) vow
To take your fortune: But your wiser buntings,
Now they are fled, are gone.

Dutch. They have done wisely,
This puts me in minde of death, Physicians thus,
With their hands full of money, use to give ore
Their Patients. Ant. Right the fashion of the world,
From decay'd fortunes, every flatterer shrinks,
Men cease to build, where the foundation sinks.

Dutch. I had a very strange dreame to night.

Ant. What is it?

Dutch. Methought I were my Coronet of State,

And

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

And on a sudden all the Diamonds

Were chang'd to Pearles Ant. My Interpretation

Is, you'll weepe shortly, for to me, the Pearles

Do signifie you tears. Dutch. The Birds, that live i'th field

On the wilde bensit of Nature, live

Happier than we; for they may choose their Mates,

And carroll their sweet pleasures to the Spring.

Bos. You are happily ore-ta'ne. Dutch. From my brother?

Bos. Yes, from the Lord Ferdinand, your brother,

All love and safety. Dutch. Thou dost blanch mischief,

Wouldst make it white: See, see; like to the calme weather

At Sea, before a tempest, false hearts speake faire

To those they intend most mischief. (ticke equivocation)

A Letter. Sent Antonio some. I want his head in a business: (a poli-

He doth not want your counsell, but your head;

That is, he cannot sleepe till you be dead.

And here's another Pitfall, that's strew'd ore

With Roses: marke it, 'tis a cunning one.

I stand ingaged for your husband for severall debts at Naples: let not

That trouble him, I had rather have his heart than his money.

And I beleeve so too. Bos. What doe you beleve?

Dutch. That he so much distrusts my husbands love,

He will by no means beleve his heart is with him

Untill he see it: The devill is not cunning enough.

To circumvent us in riddle.

Bos. Will you reject that noble and free league

Of amity and love, which I present you?

Dutch. Their league is like that of some politicke Kings

Only to make themselves of strength and power

To be our after-ruine: tell them so. Bos. And what from you?

Ant. Thus tell him: I will not come. Bos. And what of this?

Ant. My brothers have dispers'd

Blood-hounds abroad; which till I heare are muzzell'd;

Not truce, though hatch'd with nere such politicke skill

Is safe, that hangs upon our enemies will.

I'll not come at them. Bos. This proclaimes your breeding.

Every small thing, drawes a base minde to feare:

As the Adamant drawes yron: fare you well sir,

You shall shortly heare from's.

Dutch. I suspect some Ambush:

The Tragedy

Therefore by all my love; I doe conjure you
To take your eldest sonne, and fly towards Millaine;
Let us not venture all this poor remainder in one unlucky bottom.

Ant. You counsell safely:

Best of my life, farewell: Since we must part,
Heaven hath a hand in't: but no otherwise,
Then as some curious Artift, takes in sunder
A clock, or watch, when it is out of frame to bring't in better order

Dut. I know not which is best,
To see you dead, or part with you: Farewel boy,
Thou art happy, that thou hast not understanding
To know thy misery: For all our wit and
Reading, brings us to a truer sence of sorrow:
In the eternall Church, Sir, I doe hope we shall not part thus,

Ant. Oh, be of comfort,

Make patience a noble fortitude:
And think not how unkindly we are us'd:
"Man (like to Cassia) is prov'd best, being bruist

Dut. Must I like to a slave-born Russian,
Account it praise to suffer tyranny? and yet
(O Heaven) thy heavy hand is in't. I have seene
My little boy, oft scourge his top, and compar'd
My selfe to't: naught made me ere go right,
But Heavens scourge, stick. Ant. Do not weep:

Heaven fashion'd us of nothing: and we strive
To bring our selves to nothing: farewell Cariola,
And thy sweet armful: if I do never see thee more
Be a good mother to your little ones,

And save them from the Tiger: fare you well.

Dut. Let me looke upon you once more: for that speech
Came from a dying father: your kisse is colder
Then that I have seen an holy Anchorite
Give to a dead mans skull.

Ant. My heart is turn'd to a heavy lump of lead,
With which I found my danger: fare you well. Exit.

Dut. My Laurel is all withered.

Car. Looke (Madam) what a troop of armed men
Make toward us Enter Bosola with a guard.

Dut. O, They are very welcome:
When Fortunes wheele, is over-charg'd with Princes,

the Dutcheffe of Malby.

The waight makes it move swift. I would have my ruine
Be sudden: I am your adventure, am I not?

Bos. You are, you must see your husband no more,

Dutch. What devil art thou, that counterfeits heavens thunders?

Bos. Is that terrible? I would have you tell me
Whether is that more worse, that frights the silly birds

Out of the corne, or that which doth allure them

To the nets? you have hearkned to the last too much.

Dutch. O misery: like to a rusty ore-charg'd Canon,

Shall I never fly in pieces? come: to what prison?

Bos. To none: Dutch. Whether then?

Bos. To your Palace.

Dutch. I have heard that Charon's Boat, serves to convey
All ore the dismall Lake, but brings none backe againe.

Bos. Your brothers meane you, safety and pity.

Dutch. Pity! with such a pity men preserve alive
Pheasants, and Quails, when they are not far enough to be eaten?

Bos. These are your children?

Bos. Can they prattle?

Dutch. No:

But I intend, since they were borne accur'd,

Curfes shall be their first language.

Bos. Eye (Madam)

Forget this base low-fellow.

Dutch. Were I a man?

Bos. One of no birds.

Dutch. Say that he was borne meane

Man is most happy, when's owne actions

Be arguments, and examples of his Vertue.

Bos. A barren, beggerly verue.

Dutch. I pre-thee who is greatest, can you tell?

Sad tales bestir my woe: I'll tell you one.

A Salmon, as she swam unto the Sea,

Met with a Dog-fish, who encounters her

With this rough language: why art thou so bold

To mixe thy selfe with our high state of floods

Being no eminent Courtier, but one

That for the calmest, and fresh time o' th' yeere

Do'st live in shallow Rivers, rank'st thy selfe

With silly Smylts, and Shrympes? and dar'st thou

Pass by our Dog-ship, without reverence?

O (Quoth the Salmon) sister, be at peace:

The Tragedy of

Thanke Jupiter, we both have pass'd the Net,
Our value never can be truly knowne,
Till in the Fishers basket we be showne.
Fsh' Market then my price may be the higher,
Even when I am neereſt to the Cooke, and fire.
So, to Great men, the Morrall may be stretched.
„ Men oft are valued high, when th'are moſt wretch'd.
But come: whither you pleaſe: I am arm'd 'gainſt miſery:
Bent to all ſwayes of the Oppreſſors will.
There's no deepe Valley, but nere ſome great Hill. Exit.

ACTVS IIII. SCENA I.

Ferdinand, Boſola, Dutcheſſe, Cariola, Seruants.

Ferd. How doth our ſiſter Dutcheſſe beare her ſelfe
In her imprisonment?

Boſ. Nobly: I'll deſcribe her:

She's ſad, as one uſ'd to't: and ſhe ſeemes
Rather to welcome the end of miſery
Then ſhun it: a behaviour ſo noble,
As gives a maieſty to aduerſity:
You may diſcerne the ſhape of lovelineſſe
More perfect, in her teares, then in her ſmiles;
She will muſe ſoure houres together: and her ſilence,
(Metthinkes) expreſſeth more, then if ſhe ſpoke.

Ferd. Her melancholy ſeems to be ſortide with a ſtrange diſſin.

Boſ. 'Tis ſo: and this reſtraint
(Like Engliſh Maſtiſſes, that grow ſeierce with tying)
Makes her too pationately apprehend thoſe pleaſures ſhe's kept

Ferd. Curſe upon her: (from)
I will no longer ſtudy in the booke

Of anothers heart: informe her what I told you. Exit,

Boſ. All comfort to your grace; Duch. I will haue none:
Pray-thee, why doſt thou wrap thy poyſoned pills
In Gold, and Sugar?

Boſ. Your elder brother, the Lord Ferdinand,
Is come to viſite you: and ſends you word,
'Cause once he raſhly made a ſolemne vow
Never to ſee you more; he comes i' th' night:
And prayes you (gently) neither torch nor taper
Shine in your chamber: he will kiſſe your hand:

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

And reconcile himselfe: but, for his vowe,
He dares not see you.

Duc. At his pleasure:

Take hence the lights: he's come.

Ferd. Where are you? Duc. Here sit.

Ferd. This darknesse suits you well.

Duc. I would aske you pardon. Ferd. You have it;

For I account it, the honorablst revenge

Where I may kill, to pardon: where are your Cubbs?

Dutch. Whom? Ferd. Call them your children;

For though our nationall law, distinguish bastards

From true legitimate issue: compassionate nature

Makes them all equall. Duc. Do you visit me for this?

You violate a Sacrament oth Church

Shall make you howle in hell for't. Ferd. It had bin well,

Could you have liv'd thus alwayes: for indeed

You were too much ith light: But no more,

I come to seale my peace with you: here's a hand,

To which you have vow'd much love: the Ring upon't: dead mens

You gave. Dutch. I affectionately kiss it. Ferd. band.

Ferd. Pray do: and bury the print of it in your heart.

I will leave this Ring with you, for a love-token:

And the hand, as sure as the ring: and do not doubt

But you shall have the heart too: when you need a friend,

Send it to him that would it: you shall see

Whether he can aid you. Duc. You are very cold,

I feare you are not well after your travell:

Hah? lights: Oh horrible! Ferd. Let her have lights enough. Exit.

Dutch. What witch-craft doth he practise, that he hath left

A dead-mans hand here? — Here is discover'd, (being a Trai-vers) the artificiall figures of Antonio, and his children, appearing as if they were dead.

Bos. I like you: here's the piece from which 'twas ta'en;

He doth present you this sad spectacle,

That now you know directly they are dead,

Hereafter you may (wisely) cease to grieve

For that which cannot be recovered.

Dutch. There is not between heaven and the earth one wile

I stay for after this: it wailes me more,

Than were't my picture, fashion'd out of wax,

Stuck with a magicall needle, and then buried

The Tragedy of

In some foule dung-hill : and yond's an excellent property
For a tyrant which I would account mercy. Bos. What's that?

Dut. If they would bind me to that livelesse trunk?
And let me freeze to death. Bos. Come you must live.

Dut. That's the greatest torture soules feele in hell,
In hell : that they must live, and cannot dye :

Portia, I'll new kindle thy coales againe,
And revive the rare, and almost dead example
Of a loving wife. Bos. O fye! despaire? remember

You are a Christian. Dut. The Church enjoynes fasting :
I'll starve my selfe to death.

Bos. Leave this vaine sorrow ;
Things being at the worst, begin to mend :
The Bee when he hath shot his sting into your hand
May then play with your eye-lid.

Dutch. Good comfortable fellow:
Perswade a wretch that's broke upon the wheele
To have all his bones new set : entreat him live,
To be executed again ; who must dispatch me?
I account this world a tedious Theater,
For I do play a part in t' gainst my will.

Bos. Come, be of comfort, I will save your life.

Dut. Indeed I have no leisure to tend to sinall a businesse.

Bos. Now, by my life, I pittie you. (Gineste, with a dagger)

Dut. Thou art a foole then,
To wast thy pittie on a thing so wretch'd
As cannot pittie it: I am full of daggers :
Puffe: let me blow these vipers from me :
What are you?

Ser. One that wishes you long life.

Dut. I would thou wert hang'd for the horrible
Thou hast given me: I shall shortly grow one. (curse)
Of the miracles of pittie: I'll go pray: No,
I'll go curse: Bos. Oh fye!

Dut. I could curse the Stars. Bos. Oh fearefull.

Dut. And those three smyling seasons of the yeare
Into a Russian winter : nay the world
To its first Chaos. Bos. Looke you, the Stars shine still.

Dut. Oh, but you must remember, my curse haath a great way to Plagues (that make lanes through largest families)
Consumeth them. Bos. Fye Lady.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Duc. Let them like tyrants
Never be remembred, but for the ill they have done:
Let all the zealous prayers of mortified
Church-men forget them. Bos. O incharitable.

Dut. Let heaven, a litle while cease crowning Martirs
To punish them: Go, howle them this: and say I long to bleed
"It is some mercy, when men kill with speed. Exit.

Ferd. Excellent; as I would wish: she's plagu'd in Art.
These presentations are but fram'd in wax.
By the curious Master in that Quality,
Vincenzio Lauriola, and she takes them
For true substantiall bodies.

Bos. Why do you do this?

Ferd. To bring her to despaire. Bos. Faith, end here,
And go farther in your cruelty,
Send her a penitentiall garment to put on,
Next to her delicate skin, and furnish her
With beads, and prayer books.

Ferd. Damm her, that body of hers,
While that my blood ran pure in't was more worth
Than that which thou wouldst comfort, (call'd a soule)
I will send her masques of common Currizans,
Have her meat serv'd up by bandes and ruffians,
And (cause she'll needes be mad) I am resolv'd
To remove forth the common Hospitall,
All the mad-folke, and place them neere her lodging:
There let them practise together, sing and dance,
And act their gambols to the full o' th' moone:
If she can sleepe the better for it, let her,
Your work is almost ended. Bos. Must I see her again?

Ferd. Yes. Bos. Never. Ferd. You must.

Bos. Never in mine own shape,
That's forfeited, by my intelligence,
And this last cruell lie: when you send me next,
The businesse shall be comfort. Fer. Very likely,
Thy pity is nothing of kin to thee: Antonio,
Lurkes about Millaine, thou shalt shortly thither,
To feed a fire, as great as my revenge,
Which nev'r will slack, till it have spent his fuell,
"Intemperate agues, make Physicians cruell. Exeunt.

The Tragedy of

SCENA II.

Duchesse, Cariola, Servant, Mad-men, Bofola, Executioners, Ferdinand.

Dutch. What hideous noise was that?

Cari. 'Tis the wild comfort

Of Mad-men (Lady) which your Tyrant brother
Hath plac'd about your lodging: This tyranny,
I thinke was never practis'd till this houre.

Dutch. Indeed I thank him: nothing but noyse and folly
Can keep me in my right wits, whereas reason
And silence, make me starke mad: Sit downe,
Discourse to me some dismall Tragedy.

Cari. O 'twill increase your melancholly.

Dutch. Thou art deceiv'd,

To heare of greater griefe, would lessen mine,
This is a prison? Cari. Yes, but you shall live

To shake this durance off. Dutch. Thou art a foole,

The Robin red-breast and the Nightingale,

Never live long in cages. Cari. Pray dry your eyes.

What thinke you of Madame? Dutch. Of nothing:

When I muse thus, I sleepe.

Cari. Like a mad-man, with your eyes open?

Dutch. Dost thou thinke we shall know one another,
In th'other world? Cari. Yes, but of question.

Dutch. O that it were possible we might

But hold some two dayes conference with the dead;

From them, I should learne somewhat, I am sure

I never shall know here: I'll tell thee a miracle,

I am not mad yet, to my cause of sorrow.

Th'heaven o're my head, seems made of molten brasse,

The earth of flaming sulphure; yet I am not mad:

I am acquainted with sad misery,

As the tan'd galley-slave, is with his Oare,

Necessity makes me suffer constantly,

And custome makes it easie, who doe I looke like now?

Cari. Like to your picture in the Gallery,

A deale of life in shew, but none in practise:

Or rather like some reverend monument

Whose ruines are even pittied.

Dutch. Very proper;

And

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

And fortune seemes only to have her eye-sight,
To behold my Tragedy: How now,
What noise is that? Servant. I am come to tell you.
Your brother hath intended you some sport:
A great-Physitian, when the Pope was sicke
Of a deepe melancholly, presented him
With severall sortes of mad-men, which wilde object
(Being full of change and sport) forc'd him to laugh,
And so th'impost-hume broke: the selfsame cure,
The Duke intends on you. Dutch. Let me come in.

Serv. There's a mad Lawyer, and a secular Priest,
A Doëtor that hath forfeited his wits
By jealousie: an Astrologian,
That in his workes, said such a day w'th' moneth,
Should be the day of doome; and failing of't,
Ran mad: an English Taylor, crai'd i'th' braine,
With the study of new fashions; a gentleman Usher,
Quite beside himselfe, with care to keepe in minde,
The number of his Ladies salutations;
Or how do you, she employ'd him in each morning:
A Farmer too (an excellent knave in graine)
Mad; 'cause he was hindred transportation;
And let one Broaker (that's mad) loose to these,
You'd thinke the divell were among them.

Dutch. Sit Carriola: let them loose when you please,
For I am chain'd to endure all your tyranny.

Here (by a Mad-mum) this song is sung, to a dismal kinde of Musick.

O let us hawle some heavy ones,
Some deadly dogged howls,
Sounding, as from the threatening throat,
Of beasts, and fawall fowle.

An Ravens, Schipish-owles, Bulls, and Beares, we'll belt, and bawle our parts,
Till yerk some noise, have cloy'd your eares,
and coras'd your hearts.

At last when as our quire wants breath,
our bodies being blest,
We'll sing like Swans, to welcome death,
and die in love and rest.

The Tragedy of

1 Mad-man. Doomes-day not come yet? I'll draw it neerer by a perspective, or make a glasse that shall set all the world on fire upon an instant: I cannot sleepe, my pillow is stuff'd with a littor of Porcupines.

2 Mad. Hell is a meere glasse-houfe, where the devils are continually blowing up mens foules on hollow yrons, and the fire never goes out.

3 Mad. I will lie with every woman in my parish the tenth night: I will tith them over, like hay-cocks.

4 Mad. Shall my Potheary out goe me, because I am a Cockold? I have found out his foguery: he makes allom Of his wives urin, and sells it to Puritanes, that have fore Throates with over-strayning.

1 Mad. I have skill in Harroldry. 2. Haft?

1. You doe give for your creast, a wood-cockes head, with the Braines pickt out on't, you are a very ancient Gentleman.

3. Greeke is turn'd Turke, we are only to be sav'd by the Helvetian translation. 1. Come on sir, I will lay the law to you

2. Oh, rather lay a corazive, the law will eat to the bone.

3. He that drinks to satisfie nature, is damn'd

4. If I had my glasse here, I would shew a sight should make All the women here, call me mad Doctor.

1. What's he a rope-maker?

1. No, no, no, a snuffing knave, that while he shewes the Tombes, will have his hand in a wenches placket.

3. Woe, to the Carouch, that brought home my wife from The Masque, at three a clocke in the morning, it had a large Feather-bed in it.

4. I have pared the devills nayles forty times, roasted them In Ravens egges, and cur'd agues with them.

3. Get me three hundred milch bars, to make possiets, To procure sleepe.

4. All the Colledge may throw their caps at me, I have made a Soape-boyley coftive, it was my master-piece; ——— Here the Dance consisting of 8 Mad-men, with musicke answerable thereunto, after which, Bosola (like an old man) enters.

Dutch. Is he mad too?

Serv. Pray question him: I'll leave you.

Bos. I am come to make thy tombe. Dutch. Hah, my tombe? Thou speak'st, as if I lay upon my death bed,

Gassing

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Gasping for breath : dost thou perceive me sicke ?

Bos. Yes, and the more dangerously, since thy sickness is insensible.

Dutch. Thou art not mad sure, dost know me ?

Bos. Yes.

Dutch. Who am I ?

Bos. Thou art a box of worrne-seed, at best, but a salutory
Of Greene mummy : what's this flesh ? a little curd milke, Phantasticall puffed-paste : our bodies are weaker than those
Paper prisons, boyes use to keepe flies in ; more contemptible :
Since ours is to preserve earth-wormes : didst thou never see
A Larke in a cage ? such is the soule in the body : this world
Is like her little turfe of grasse, and the heaven ore our heads,
Like her looking-glasse, only gives us a miserable knowledge
Of the small compasse of our prison.

Dutch. Am not I, thy Dutchesse ?

Bos. Thou art some great woman sure, for riot begins to sit on thy Fore-head (clad in gray haire) twenty yeeres sooner, than on a
Merry milke-maides. Thou sleepest worse, than if a monie
Should be forc'd to take up his lodging in a cats eare :
A little infant, that breeds it's teeth, should it lie with thee, would
Cry out, as if thou wert the more unquiet bed-fellow.

Dutch. I am Dutchesse of Malfy still.

Bos. That makes thy sleepes so broken :

"Glories (like glow-wormes) a farre off, shine bright,
But look'd too neere, have neither heat nor light.

Dutch. Thou art very plaine.

Bos. My trade is to flatter the dead, not the living.
I am a tombe-maker.

Dutch. And thou com'st to make my tombe ?

Bos. Yes. Dutch. Let me be a little merry,
Of what stuffe wilt thou make it ?

Bos. Nay, resolve me first, of what fashion ?

Dutch. Why, doe we grow phantasticall in our death-bed ?
Do we affect fashion in the grave ?

Bos. Most ambitiously : Princes images on their tombes,
Do not lie, as they were wont, seeming to pray,
Up to heaven : but with their hands under their cheekes,
(As if they died of the tooth-ache) they are not carved
With their eyes fix'd upon the starrs ; but as their Mindes were wholly bent upon the world,
The selfe same way ; they seeme to turne their faces.

Dutch.

The Tragedy of

Dut. Let me know fully therefore the effect
Of this thy dismall preparation,
This talke, fit for a chamell?

Bos. Now, I shall,
Here is a present from your Princely brothers, A Coffin,
And may it arrive wel-come, for it brings Cords, and
Last benefit, last sorrow. a Bell.

Dut. Let me see it,
I have so much obedience, in my bloud,
I wish it in their veines, to do them good.

Bos. This is your last presence Chamber.

Cari. O my sweet Lady. Dut. Peace, it affrights not me.

Bos. I am the common Bell-man,
That usually is sent to condemn'd persons
The night before they suffer. Dut. Even now thou said'st,
Thou wast a tombe-maker? Bos. 'Twas to bring you
By degrees to mortification: Listen.

*Harke, now everything is still,
The Scritch-Owle, and the whistler shrill,
Call upon our Dame, aloud,
And bid her quickly don her shroud:
Much you had of land and rent,
Your length in clay's now competent.
A long war disturb'd your mind,
Here your perfect peace is sign'd,
Of what is't, foales make such vaine keeping?
Lin their conception, their birth, weeping:
Their life a generall mist of error,
Their death, a hideous storme of error,
Strew your haire, with powders sweet:
D'on cleane linnen, bathe your feet,
And (the faine send more to chace)
A crucifixe let blesse your necke,
'Tis now full tide, betwene night and day,
End your grome, and come away.*

Cari. Hence villaines, tyrants, murderers: alas!
What will you do with my Lady? call for helpe.

Dut. to whom, to our next neighbours? they are mad-folkes.

Bos. Remove that noyse. Dut. Farewell Cariola,
In my last will, I have not much to give

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

A many hungry guests, have fed upon me,
Thine will be a poor reversion. Car. I will die with her.

Dutch. I pray thee look thou giv'st my little boy
Some sirrop for his cold, and let the girl
Say her prayers, ere she sleep. Now what you please,
What death? Bos. Strangling, here are your executioners.

Dutch. I forgive them:
The appoplexie, eathar, or cough o'th'lungs,
Would do as much as they do.

Bos. Doth not death fright you?

Dutch. Who would be afraid o't?
Knowing to meet such excellent company
In th'other world. Bos. Yet, methinkes,
The manner of your death should much afflict you
This cord should terrifie you? Dutch. Not a whit,
What would it pleasure me, to have my throat cut
With diamonds? or to be smothered
With Cassia? or to be shot to death, with pearles?
I know death hath ten thousand severall doores
For men to take their Exits: and 'tis found
They goe on such strange geometrical hinges,
You may open them both wayes: any way, (for heaven sake)
So I were out of your whispering: Tell my brothers,
That I perceive death, (now I am well awake)
Best gift is, they can give, or I can take,
I would faine put off my last womans fault,
I'd not be tedious to you. Exe. We are ready.

Dutch. Dispose my breath, how please you, but my body
Beltow upon my women, will you? Exe. Yes.

Dutch. Pull, and pull strongly, for your able strength,
Must pull downe heaven upon me:
Yet stay, heaven gates are not so highly arch'd
As Princely palaces, they that enter there
Must go upon their knees: Come violent death,
Serve for Mandragora, to make me sleepe;
Go tell my brothers, when I am laid out,
They then may feed in quier. They strangle her?

Bos. Where's the waiting woman?
Fetch her: Some other strangle the children:
Looke you, there sleeps your mistress.

The Tragedy of

Car. Oh thou art damn'd
Perpetually for this: My turne is next,
Is't not so ordered? Bos. Yes, I am glad
You are so well prepar'd for't. Car. You are deceiv'd fir,
I am not prepar'd for't, I will not die,
I will come to my answer; and know
How I have offended. Bos. Come dispatch her:
You kept her counsell, now you shall keepe ours.

Car. I will not die, I must not, I am contracted
To a yong Gentleman.

Exec. Here's your wedding Ring.

Car. Let me but speake with the Duke: I'll discover
Treason to his person. Bos. Delayes: throttle her.

Exec. She bites, and scratches. Car. If you kill me now
I am damn'd: I have not bin at confession
This two yeeres. Bos. When?

Car. I am quicke with child. Bos. Why then,
Your credit's laid, beane her into th'next roome:
Let this lie still. Ferd. Is she dead? Bos. She is what You'll'd have her: But here begin your pity, shewes the Alas, how have these offended? children strangled.

Ferd. The death
Of young Wolfe, is never to be pizied.

Bos. Fix your eyes here. Ferd. Constantly.

Bos. Do you nor weep?

Other sins, only speake; Murder shrelkes out:
The element of water, moistens the Earth,
But blood flies upwards, and bedewes the Heavens.

Ferd. Cover her face: mine eyes dwell the di'd young

Bos. I think not so her infelicity
Seem'd to have yeares too many.

Ferd. She, and I were Twinnes:
And should I die this instant, I had liv'd
Her time to a minute.

Bos. It seems she was borne first:
You have bloudily approv'd the ancient truth,
That kindred commonly do worfe agree
Than remote strangers. Ferd. Let me see her face again;
Why didst not thou pierce her: what an excellent Honest man, might't thou have been

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

If thou hadst borne her to some sanctuary?
Or (bold in a good cause) oppos'd thy selfe
With thy advanced sword above thy head,
Between her innocency, and my revenge?
I bad thee, when I was distracted of my wits,
Go kill my dearest friend, and thou hast don't.
For let me but examine well the cause,
What was the meannesse of her march to me?
Onely I must confesse, I had a hope
(Had she continu'd widow) to have gain'd
An infinite masse of Treasure by her death:
And what was the main cause, her Marriage,
That drew a streame of gall quite through my Heart; for thee, (as we observe in Tragedies
That a good Actor many times is curs'd
For playing a villains part) I hate thee for't: and (For my sake) say thou hast done much ill, well:

Bos. Let me quicken your memory: for I
Perceive you are falling into ingratitude: I
Challenge the reward due to my service.

Ferd. I'll tell thee,
What I'll give thee. Bos. Doe:

Ferd. I'll give thee a pardon for this murder:

Bos. Hah? Ferd. Yes: and 'tis
The largest bounty I can study to do thee.

By what authority didst thou execute
This bloody service? Bos. By yours.

Ferd. Mine? was I her Iudge?
Did any ceremoniall form of law,

Doom her to not-Being? did a compleat Jury
Deliver her conviction up'th Court?

Where shalt thou find this Iudgment registred,
Vnlesse in hell? See: like a bloody fool

Thou hast forfeited thy life, and thou shalt dy for't.

Bos. The office of justice is perverted quite
When one thee hangs another: who shall dare
To reveale this: Ferd. Oh, I'll tell thee:

The wolfe shall finde her grave, and scrape it up
Not to devour the corps, but to discover
The horrid murder.

The Tragedy of

Bos. You; not I shall quake for't. Ferd. I leave me;

Bos. I will first receive my Pension.

Ferd. You are a villain: Bos. When your ingratitude

Is Iudge, I am so; Ferd. O horror!

That not the feare of him, which bindes the diuels;

Can prescribe man obedience.

Never looke upon me more. Bos. Why fare thee well:

Your brother, and your self, are worthy men;

You have a paire of hearts, are hollow Graves,

Rotten, and rotting others: and your vengeance,

(Like two chain'd-bullets) still goes arme in arme.

You may be Brothers: for treason, like the plague,

Doth take much in a blond: I stand like one

That long hath ta'ne a sweet, and golden dreame.

I am angry with my selfe, now that I wake.

Ferd. Get thee into some unknown part o'th' world;

That I may never see thee. Bos. Let me know

Wherefore I should be thus neglected? fit

I serv'd your tyranny: and rather strove

To satisfie your selfe, then all the world;

And though I loath'd the evill, yet I lov'd

You that did counsell it: and rather sought

To appeare a true servant, then an honest man.

Ferd. I'll goe hunt the Badger by Owle-light:

'Tis a deed of darknesse. Exit.

Bos. He's much distracted: Off my painted honour,

While with vaine hopes, our faculties we tyre,

We seeme to sweat in yce, and freeze in fire,

What would I do, were this to do againe?

I would not change my peace of conscience

For all the wealth of Europe: She stirs; here's life:

Returne (faire soule) from darknesse, and leade mine

Out of this fencible hell: She's warme, she breathes:

Vpon thy pale lips I will melt my heart.

To store them with fresh colour: who's there?

Some cordiall drinke, Alas! I dare not call:

So pity, would destroy pity: her Eye opes,

And heaven in it, seems to ope, (that late was shut,

To take me up to mercy. Durch, Antonio.

Bos. Yes (Madam) he is living.

The

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

The dead bodies you saw, were but fajn'd starves;
He's reconcil'd to your brothers: the Pope hath wrought
The attonement. Duc. Mercy. She dies.

Bos. Oh, she's gone againe: there the cords of life broke:
Oh sacred Innocence, that sweetly sleeps
On Turtles feathers: whilst a guilty conscience
Is a blacke Register, wherein is writ
All our good deeds, and bad: a Perspective
That shewes us hell; that we cannot be suffer'd
To doe good when we have a minde to it?
This is manly sorrow:

These teares, I am very certaine, never grew
In my mothers milke. My estate is sunke
Below the degree of feare: where were
These penitent fountaines, while she was living?
Oh, they were frozen up: here is a sight
As direfull to my soule, as is the sword
Unto a wretch hath slaine his father: Come I'll beare thee hence,
And execute thy will; that's deliver
Thy body to the reverend dispose
Of some good women: that the cruell tyrant
Shall not deny me: Then I'll goe to Millaine,
Where somewhat I will speedily enact
Worth my dejection.

ACTUS V. SCENA I.

Antonio, Delio, Pescara, Julia:

Ant. What thinke you of my hope of reconciliation
To the Aragonian brethren? Del. I misdoubt it;
For though they have sent their letters of safe conduct
For your repaire to Millaine, they appeare
But Nets, to entrap you: The Marquis of Pescara,
Under whom you hold certaine land in Cheir,
Much gainst his noble nature, hath bin mov'd
To seize those lands, and some of his dependants
Are at this instant, making it their sinit
To be invested in your revenues.
I cannot thinke, they meane well to your life,
That doe deprive you of your meanes of life,

The Tragedy of

Your living. Ant. You are still an heretique.

To any safety, I can shape my selfe.

Del. Here comes the Marquis: I will make my selfe
Petitioner for some part of your land,

To know whither it is flying. Ant. I pray do.

Del. Sir, I have a suit to you. Pesc. To me.

Del. An easie one:

There is the Cittadell of St. Bennet,
With some demesnes, of late in the possession
Of Antonio Bologna, please you bestow them on me.

Pesc. You are my friend: But this is such a suit,
Nor fit for me to give, nor you to take. Del. No sir?

Pesc. I will give you ample reason for't,
Soon in private: Her's the Cardinal's Mistis.

Jul. My Lord, I am grown your poor petitioner,
And should be an ill begger, had I not
A Great mans letter, here (the Cardinals)
To Court you in my favour.

Pesc. He entreats for you
The Cittadell of St. Bennet, that belong'd
To the banish'd Bologna. Jul. Yes:

Pesc. I could not have thought of a friend, I could Rather pleasure with it: 'tis yours: Jul. Sir, I thank you:
And he shall know how doubly I am engag'd
Both in your gift, and speedinesse of giving,
Which makes your grant, the greater. Exit.

Ant. How they fortifie
Themselves with my mine? Del. Sir: I am
Little bound to you: Pesc. Why.

Del. Because you denide this suit, to me, and gav't
To such a creature. Pesc. Do you know what it was?

It was Antonio's land: not forfeited
By course of law; but ravish'd from his throat
By the Cardinals entreaty: it were not fit
I should bestow so maine a peece of wrong
Vpon my friend: 'tis a gratification

Only due to a strumpet: for it is injustice;
Shall I sprinkle the pure blood of Innocents
To make those followers, I call my friends
Looke ruddier upon me? I am glad

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

This land, (ra'ne from the owner by such wrong)
Returns againe unto so foule an use,
As Salary for his lust. Learne, (good Delle)
To aske noble things of me, and you shall find
I'll be a noble giver. Del. You instruct me well:

Ant. Why, here's a man now, would fright
Impudence from sawciest Beggars.

Pesc. Prince Ferdinand's come to Milaine
Sick (as they give out) of an Appoplexie:
But some say, tis a frenzy; I am going to visit him. Ex.

Ant. 'Tis a noble old fellow:

Del. What course do you mean to take, Antonio?

Ant. This night, I mean to venture all my fortune
(Which is no more, then a poor lingering life)
To the Cardinals worst of malice: I have got Private access to his chamber: and intend
To visit him, about the mid of night.
(As once his brother did our noble Dutchesse.)
It may be that the sudden apprehension
Of danger (for I'll goe in mine own shape)
When he shall see it fraught with love and duty,
May draw the poyson out of him, and work
A friendly reconciliation; if it faile;
Yet, it shall rid me of this infamous calling.
For better fall once, then be ever falling.

Del. I'll second you in all danger and (how ere)
My life keeps ranke with yours.

Ant. You are still my lord, and best friend. Exeunt.

SCENA II.

Pescara, a Doctor, Ferdinand, Cardinall, Malatesto, Bosola, Iulio.

Pesc. Now Doctor; may I visit your patient?

Doctor. If it please your Lordship: but he's instantly
To take the ayre here in the Gallery, by my direction.

Pesc. Pray thee, what's his disease?

Doc. A very pestilent disease (my Lord)
They call Licantropia. Pesc. What's that?
I need a Dictionary to't. Doc. I'll tell you:
In these that are possess'd with't, there ore-flows
Such melancholly humour, they imagine

Them.

The Tragedy

Themselves to be transformed into Woolves,
Steale forth to Church-yards in the dead of night,
And dig dead bodies up : as two nights since
One met the Duke, 'bout mid-night in a lane
Behind St. Marks Church, with the leg of a man
Upon his shoulder ; and he howl'd fearefully :
Said he was a Woolfe : only the difference
Was, a Woolves skinne is hairy on the out-side,
His on the in-side : bad them take their swords,
Rip up his flesh, and try : straight I was sent for,
And having minister'd unto him, found his Grace
Very well recovered. Pesc. I am glad on't.

Dell. Yet not without some feare
Of a relaps : if he grow to his fit againe,
Than ever Peraclesus dream'd of ; If
They'll give me leave I'll buffet his madnes out of him.
Stand aside, he comes. Ferd. Leave me.

Mal. Why doth your Lordship use this solitarines ?

Ferd. Eagles commonly flye alone : They are Crows, Dawes, and Sterlings that flocke together : Looke, what's that,
Followes me ? Mal. Nothing (my Lord)

Ferd. Yes.

Mal. 'Tis your shadow.

Ferd. Stay it, let it not haunt me.

Mal. Impossible ; if you move, and the Sun shine.

Ferd. I will throttle it.

Mal. Oh, my Lord : you are angry with nothing.

Ferd. You are a foole :

How is't possible I should catch my shadow,
Unlesse I fall upon't ? When I go to hell,
I meane to carry a bribe : for looke you
Good gifts evermore make way, for the worst persons.

Pesc. Rise good my Lord.

Ferd. I am studying the Art of patience.

Pesc. 'Tis a Noble Vertue.

Ferd. To drive sixe Snailes before me, from this towne
To Mesco ; neither use Goad, ndr whip to them,
But let them take their owne time : (the patient'st man i'th' world Match me for an experiment) and I'll crawl after
Like a sheepe-biter. Card. Force him up.

Ferd. Use me well, you were best :

What

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

What I have done, I have done : I'll confesse nothing.

Doct. Now let me come to him : Are you mad, (My Lord ?) are you out of your Princely wits ?

Ferd. What's she ? Pesc. Your Doctor.

Ferd. Let me have his beard saw'd off, and his eye
Browes fill'd more civill.

Doct. I must do mad trickes with him,
For that's the only way out. I have brought

Your grace a Salamanders skin, to keep you
From sun-burning. Ferd. I have cruell fore eyes.

Doct. The white of a Cockatrixes egge, is present remedy.

Ferd. Let it be a new laid one, you were best
Hide me from him : Physicians are like Kings,
They brooke no contradiction.

Doct. Now he begins to feare me,
Now let me alone with him.

Card. How now, put off your gowne ?

Doct. Let me have some forty urinalls fill'd with Rose-water ?
He, and I'll go pelt one another with them,
Now he begins to feare me : Can you fetch a friske sir ?
Let him go, let him go upon my perill :
I find by his eye, he stands in awe of me,
I'll make him, as tame as a Dormouse.

Ferd. Can you fetch your friskes, sir ? I will stampe him into a Flea off his skin, to cover one of the Anatomies, (Cullice :
This rogue hath set i'th cold yonder, in Barber Chyrurgeons hall :
Hence, hence, you are all of you, like beasts for sacrifice,
There's nothing left of you, but tongue and belly,
Flattery and leachery.

Pesc. Doctor, he did not feare you thoroughly.

Doct. True, I was somewhat too forward.

Bos. Mercy upon me, what a fallall judgement
Hath fallne upon this Ferdinand ? Pesc. Knowes your grace
What accident hath brought unto the Prince,
This strange distraction ?

Card. I must faine somewhat : Thus they say it grew,
You have heard it rumord for these many years,
None of our family dies, but there is stene
The shape of an old woman, which is given
By tradition, to us, to have bin murder'd

The Tragedy of

By her Nephewes, for her riches : Such a figure
One night (as the Prince fate up late at's booke)
Appear'd to him, when crying out for helpe,
The gentleman of's Chamber, found his grace
All on a cold sweat, alter'd much in face
And language : Since which apparition,
He hath growne worse and worse, and I much feare
He cannot live. Bos. Sir, I would speake with you.

Pesc. We'll leave your grace,
Wishing to the sicke Prince, our Noble Lord,
All health of minde, and body.

Card. You are most welcome :
Are you come ? so, this fellow must not know
By any meanes I had intelligence
In our Dutcheffe death : For (though I counsell'd it)
The full of all th' agreement seem'd to grow
From Ferdinand : Now sir, how fares our sister ?
I do not thinke but sorrow makes her looke
Like to an oft di'd garment : She shall now
Taste comfort from me : why do you look so wildly ?
Oh, the fortune of your master here, the Prince
Dejects you, but be you of happy comfort :
If you'll do one thing for me, I'll intreate
Though he had a cold tombe-stone ore his bones
I'll'd make you what you should be. Bos. Any thing,
Give me it in a breath, and let me flye to't :
They that thinke long, small expedition win,
For musing much o'th end, cannot begin.

Jul. Sir, will you come in to supper ?

Card. I am busie, leave me

Jul. What an excellent shape hath that fellow ? Exit.

Card. 'Tis thus : Antonio lurkes here in Millicaine,
Enquire him out, and kill him : while he lives,
Our sister cannot marry, and I have thought
Of an excellent match for her : do this, and stile me
Thy advancement.

Bos. By what meanes shall I finde him out ?

Card. There's a gentleman call'd Delio
Here in the Campe, that hath bin long approv'd
His loyal friend : Set eye upon that fellow.

Follow

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Follow him to Masse, may be Antonio,
Although he do aceunt religion
But a Schoole-name, for fashion of the world,
May accompany him; or else go enquire out
Delio's Confessor, and see if you can bribe
Him to reveale it: there are a thousand wayes
A man might find to trace him: As to know,
What fellowes haunt the Jewes, for taking up
Great summes of money, for sure he's in want;
Or else to go to th' Picture-makers, and learne
Who brought her Picture lately, some of these
Happily may take. Bos. Well, I'll not freeze ith' busines,
I would see that wretched thing, Antonio,
Above all sights ith' world. Card. Do, and be happy. Exit.

Bos. This fellow doth breed Basiliskes in's eyes,
He's nothing else, but murder, yet he seemes
Not to have notice of the Dutchesse death:
'Tis his cunning: I must follow his example,
There cannot be a surer way to trace,
Than that of an old Fox.

Jul. So, sir, you are well met. Bos. How now?

Jul. Nay, the doores are fast enough:
Now Sir, I will make you confesse your treachery.

Bos. Treachery? Jul. Yes, confesse to me
Which of my women 'twas you hyr'd, to put
Love-powder into my drinke?

Bos. Love-powder?

Jul. Yes, when I was at Malfy,
Why should I fall in love with such a face else?
I have already suffer'd for thee so much paine,
The only remedy to do me good,
Is to kill my longing.

Bos. Sure your Pistoll holds
Nothing but perfumes, or kissing comfits: excellent Lady,
You have a pretty way on't to discover
Your longing: Come, come, I'll disarme you,
And arme you thus, yet this is wondrous strange.

Jul. Compare thy forme, and my eyes together,
You'll find my love no such great miracle: Now you'll say
I am wanton: This nice modesty, in Ladies

The Tragedy of

Is but a troublesome familiar,
That haunts them.

Bos. Know you me, I am a blunt souldier. Jul. The better,
Sure, there wants fire, where there are no lively sparks
Of roughnesse. Bos. And I want complement.

Jul. Why ignorance in court-ship cannot make you do amisse,
If you have a heart to do well. Bos. You are very faire.

Jul. Nay, if you lay beauty to my charge,
I must plead unguilty. Bos. Your bright eyes
Carry a Quiver of darts in them, sharper
Than Sun-beames.

Jul. You will mar me with commendation,
Put your selfe to the charge of courting me,
Whereas now I woe you.

Bos. I have it, I will work upon this Creature,
Let us grow most amourosly familiar:
If the great Cardinall now should see me thus,
Would he not count me a villaine?

Jul. No, he might count me a wanton,
Not lay a scruple of offence on you:
For if I see, and steale a Diamond,
The fault is not i'th stone but in me the thief,
That purloines it: I am suddaine with you,
We that are great women of pleasure, use to cut off
These uncertaine wishes, and unquiet longings,
And in an instant joyne the sweet delight
And the pritty excuse together: had you bin i'th street,
I should have courted you.

Bos. Oh, you are an excellent Lady.

Jul. Bid me do somewhat for you presently,
To expresse I love you.

Bos. I will, and if you love me,
Faile not to effect it: The Cardinall is grown wondrous mellan-
Demand the cause, let him not put you off, (cholly,
With faign'd excuse, discover the maine ground on't.

Jul. Why would you know this?

Bos. I have depended on him,
And I heare that he is false in some disgrace
With the Emperour, if he be like the mice
That forsake falling houses, I would have

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

To other dependance.

Ful. You shall not need follow the wars,
I'll be your maintenance.

Bos. And I your loyall servant,
But I cannot leave my calling. Ful. Not leave an Ungratfull Generall, for the love of a sweet Lady?
You are like some, cannot sleep in feather-beds,
But must have blocks for their pillows.

Bos. Will you do this? Ful. Cunningly.

Bos. To morrow I'll expect th'intelligence.

Ful. To morrow? get you into my Cabiner,
You shall have it with you: do not delay me,
No more than I do you: I am like one
That is condemn'd: I have my pardon promis'd.
But I would see it seal'd: Go, get you in,
You shall see me wind my tongue about his heart,
Like a skaine of filke.

Car. Where are you? Serv. Here.

Car. Let none upon your lives
Have conference with the Prince Ferdinand,
Unlesse I know it: In this distraction
He may reveale the murther:
Yond's my lingring consumption:
I am weary of her; and by any meanes
Would be quit off. Ful. How now, my Lord?

What ailes you? Car. Nothing.

Ful. Oh, you are much altered:
Come, I must be your Secretary, and remove
This lead from off your bosome, what's the matter?

Car. I may not tell you.

Ful. Are you so far in love with sorrow,
You cannot part, with part of it? or think you
I cannot love your grace, when you are sad,
As well as merry? or do you suspect
I, that have bin a secret to your heart,
These many winters, cannot be the same
Unto your tongue?

Card. Satisfie thy longing,
The only way to make thee keep my counsell,
Is not to tell thee. Ful. Tell your Echo this,

The Tragedy of

Or flatterers, that (like echoes) still report
What they heare (though most imperfect) and not me:
For, if that you be true unto your selfe,
I'll know. Car. Will you rack me?

Jul. No, judgement shall
Draw it from you: It is an equall fault,
To tell ones secrets, unto all, or none.

Card. The first argues folly.

Jul. But the last tyranny.

Car. Very wel, why imagine I have committed
Some secret deed, which I desire the world
May never heare of?

Jul. Therefore may not I know it?
You have conceal'd for me as great a sin
As adultery: Sir, I beseech you.
For perfect triall of my constancy
Till now: sir, I beseech you.

Card. You'll repent it. Jul. Never.

Card. It hurries thee to ruine: I'll not tell thee,
Be well advis'd, and thinke what danger 'tis
To receive a Princes secrets: they that do,
Had need have their breasts hood'p with adamant
To containe them: I pray thee yet be satisfi'd,
Examine thine own frailty, 'tis more easie
To tie knots, then unloose them: 'tis a secret
That (like a lingring poyson) may chance lie
Spread in thy vaines, and kill thee seven yeare hence.

Jul. Now you dally with me.

Card. No more, thou shalt know it.
By my appointment, the great Dutchesse of Malsy,
And two of her young children, foure nights since
Were strangled.

Jul. Oh heaven! sir, what have you done?

Card. How now? how settles this? think you your Bosome will be a grave, darke and obscure enough
For such a secret?

Jul. You have undone your selfe, sir.

Card. Why? Jul. It lies not in me to conceale it.
Card. No? come, I will swear you to 't upon this book.

Jul. Most religiously. Card. Kill it.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Now you shall never utter it, thy curiosity
Hath undone thee : thou'rt poyson'd with that book,
Because I knew thou couldst not keep my counsell,
I have bound thee to't by death.

Bos. For pittie sake, hold. Card. Ha, Bosola?

Jul. I fergive you,

This equall piece of Justice you have done :
For I betraid your counsell to that fellow,
He over heard it ; that was the cause I said
It lay not in me, to conceale it.

Bos. Oh, foolish woman,
Coldst not thou have poyson'd him?

Jul. 'Tis weakenesse,
Too much to thinke what should have bin done,
I go, I know not whither.

Card. Wherefore com'st thou hither?

Bos. That I might find a great man, (like your selfe)
Not out of his wits (as the Lord Ferdinand)
To remember my service.

Card. I'll have thee hew'd in pieces.

Bos. Make not your selfe such a promise of that life
Which is not yours, to dispose of.

Card. Who plac'd thee here.

Bos. Her lust, as she intended.

Car. Very well, now you know me for your fellow murderer.

Bos. And wherefore should you lay faire marble colours,
Upon your rotten purposes to me?
Unless you imitate some that do plot great treasons,
And when they have done, go hide themselves i'th graves,
Of those were Actors in't? Card. No more,
There is a fortune attends thee.

Bos. Shall I go sue a fortune any longer?
Tis the fooles Pilgrimage.

Card. I have honors in store for thee.

Bos. There are many wayes that conduct to seeming Honor, and some of them very durty ones.

Card. Throw to the devill
Thy mellancholy, the fire burnes well,
What need we keep a stirring of't, and make
A great smoother? thou wilt kill Anonio?

The Tragedy of

Bos. Yes.

Card. Take up that body.

Bos. I thinke I shall

Shortly grow the common Beare, for Church-yards ?

Card. I will allow thee some dozen of attendants,

To aid thee in the murder. Bos. Oh, by no means,

Physicians that apply horse-leeches to any rancke swelling,

Use to cut of their tailes, that the blood may run through them

The faster : Let me have no traine, when I go to shed blood,

Least it make me have a greater, when I ride to the Gallowes.

Card. Come to me after midnight, to helpe to remove that body

To her own lodging : I'll give out she died o'th' Plague ;

'T will breed the lesse enquiry after her death.

Bos. Where's Castrucbio, her husband ?

Card. He's rode to Naples to take possession

Of Antonio's Cittadell.

Bos. Beleeve me, you have done a very happy turn.

Card. Faile not to come : There is the Master-key

Of our Lodgings : and by that you may conceive

What trust I plant in you.

Exit.

Bos. You shall find me ready.

Oh, poore Antonio, though nothing be so needfull

To thy estate, as pity, Yet I find

Nothing so dangerous, I must look to my footing ;

In such slippery yce-pavements, men had need

To be frost-nayld well : they may break their necks else.

The President's here afore me : how this man

Bears up in Bloud ? seemes fearelesse ? why, 'tis well :

Security some men call the Suburbs of Hell,

Only a dead wall between. Well (good Antonio)

I'll seek thee out ; and all my care shall be

To put thee into safety from the reach

Of these most cruell biters, that have got

Some of thy bloud already. It may be,

I'll joyne with thee, in a most just revenge.

The weakest arme is strong enough, that strikes

With the sword of Justice : Still me thinks the Dutchesse

Haunts me : there, there : 'tis nothing but my melancholy.

O Penitence, let me truly tast thy Cup,

That throwes men down, only to rise them up.

Exit.

SCEN.

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

SCENA. III.

Antonio, Delio, Eccbo, (from the Dutchesse grave.)

Del. Yond's the Cardinal's window : This fortification
Grew from the ruines of an ancient Abbey :
And to yond side o'th'river, lies a wall
(Piece of a Cloyster) which in my opinion
Gives the best Eccho, that you ever heard?
So hollow, and so dismall, and withall
So plaine in the distinction of our words,
That many have suppos'd it is a Spirit
That answers.

Ant. I do love these ancient ruines :
We never tread upon them, but we set
Our foot upon some reverend History,
And questionlesse, here in this open Court
(Which now lies naked to the injuries
Of stormy weather) some lye enter'd
Lov'd the Church so well, and gave so largely to it,
They thought it should have canopied their bones
Till Dooms-day : but all things have their end :
Churches and Cities (which have diseases like to men)
Must have like death that we have.

Eccbo Like death that we have.

Del. Now the Eccho hath caught you.

Ant. It groan'd (methought) and gave
A very deadly accent?

Ecc. Deadly accent.

Del. I told you 'twasa pretty one : You may make it
A Hunter-man, or a Faulconer, a Musitian,
Or a thing of sorrow.

Ecc. A thing of Sorrow.

Ant. I sure : that suites it best.

Ecc. That suites it best.

Ant. 'Tis very like my wives voyce.

Ecc. I wives-voyce.

Del. Come, let's us walke farther fromt :
I would not have you to th' Cardinal's to night :

The Tragedy of

Doe not, Eecho. Do not.

Del. Wisdome doth not more moderate, waisting sorrow
Than time: take time for't: be mindfull of thy safery.

Ec. Be mindfull of thy safery.

Ant. Necessity compels me;
Make scrutiny throughout the'passe
Of your owne life; you'll find it impossible
To flye your fate. O flye your fate.

Del. Harke: the dead stones seeme to have pity on you
And give you good counsell.

Ant. Eecho, I will not talke with thee;
For thou art a dead Thing.

Eecho. Thou art a dead Thing.

Ant. My Dutchesse is asleepe now,
And her little-Ones, I hope sweetly: oh heaven,
Shall I never see her more?

Eecho. Never see her more.

Ant. I mark'd not one repetition of the Eecho,
But that: and on the sudden, a cleare light
Presented me a face folded in sorrow.

Del. Your fancy; merely.

Ant. Come; I'll be out of this Ague;
For to live thus, is not indeed to live:
It is a mockery and abill of life,

I will not henceforth save my selfe by halves,
Lose all, or nothing. Del. Your own vertue save you:

I'll fetch your eldest sonne, and second you:

It may be that the sight of his owne blood

Spread into so sweet a figure, may beget

The more compassion.

How ever, fare you well:

Though in our miseries, Fortune have a part,

Yet, in our noble sufferings, she hath none,

Contempt of paine, that we may call our owne.

Exit.

SCENA IIII.

Cardinall, Pescara, Malateste, Roderigo, Grisolan, Bosola, Ferdinand, Antonio, Servant.

Card. You shall not watch to night by the sicke Prince,
His Grace is very well recovered.

 This Echo is not beyond the third. For the Cliffords Part at Kings Weston near Bristol is an Echo which I have heard
repeat 5 or 6 syllables distinctly. I myself have tried it. 16 May. 1602.*

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

Mal. Good my Lord suffer us.

Card. Oh, by no meanes :

The noise, and change of object in his eye,
Doth more distract him : I pray, all to bed,
And though you heare him in his violent fit,
Do not rise, I intreat you. Pes. So fir, we shall not.

Card. Nay, I must have you promise
Upon your honors, for I was enjoyn'd to't
By himsele ; and he seem'd to urge it sensibly.

Pes. Let our honors binde this trifle.

Card. Nor any of your followers. Mal. Neither.

Card. It may be to make triall of your promise
When he's asleepe, my selfe will rise, and faine
Some of his mad trickes, and cry out for helpe
And faine my selfe in danger.

Mal. If your throat were cutting,
I'lld not come at you, now I have protested against it.

Card. Why, I thanke you

Grif. 'Twas a foule storme to night.

Rod. The Lord Ferdinand's chamber, shooke like an Oze.

Mal. 'Twas nothing but pure kinde fire in the devill,
To rocke his owne childe.

Exeunt.

Card. The reason why I would not suffer them
About my brother, is, because at midnight
I may with better privacy, convey
Julias body, to her owne lodging : O, my Conscience!
I would pray now : but the devill takes away my heart
For having any confidence in prayer.
About this houre, I appointed Bosola
To fetch the body : when he hath serv'd my turne,
He dies.

Exi

Bos. Hah ? 'twas the Cardinals voyce : I heard him name
Bosola, and my death : listen, I heare ones footing.

Ferd. Strangling is a very quiet death.

Bos. Nay then I see. I must stand upon my Guard.

Ferd. What say to that ? whisper, softly : doe you agree to't ?
So it must be done i'th' darke : the Cardinall

Would not for a thousand pounds, the Doctor should see it. Exit.

Bos. My death is plotted ; here's the consequence of murder.

"We value not desert, nor Christian breath,"

The Tragedy of

When we know blacke deeds, must be cur'd with death.

Serv. Here stay, sir, and be confident, I pray:
I'll fetch you a dark Lanthorne. Exit.

Ant. cold I take him at his prayers,
There were hope of pardon.

Bos. Fall right my sword:
I'll not give thee so much leysure, as to pray.

Ant. Oh, I am gone: Thou hast ended a long suit,
In a minute. Bos. What art thou?

Ant. A most wretched thing,
That only have thy benefit in death,
To appeare my selfe. Ser. Where are you, sir,

Ant. very neere my home: Bosola?

Serv. Oh, misfortune.

Bos. Smother thy pittie, thou art dead else: Antonio?
The man I would have sav'd bove mine own life?
We are meereley the Stars tennys-balls (stooke, and banded
Which way please them) oh good Antonio,
I'll whisper one thing in thy dying eare,
Shall make thy heart breake quickly: Thy faire Dutchesse
And two sweet Children.

Ant. Their very names
Kindle a little life in me.

Bos. Are murdered!

Ant. Some men have wisht to die,
At the hearing of sad tidings: I am glad
That I shall do't in sadnes: I would not now
With my wounds balm'de, nor heal'd: for I have no use
To put my life to: In all our Quest of Greatnes;
(Like wanton boyes, whose pastime is their care)
We follow after bubbles blowne i'th'ayre.
Pleasure of life, what is't? only the good houres
Of an Ague: meereley a preparative to rest,
To endure vexation: I doe not aske
The proceffe of my death: only commend me
To Delia.

Bos. Breake heart:

Ant. And let my Sonne flye the Courts of Princes.

Bos. Thou seem'st to have lov'd Antonio?

Ser. I brought him hither,

the Dutchesse of Malfy.

To have reconcil'd him with the Cardinall.

Bos. I doe not aske thee that:

Take him up, if thou tender thine owne life,

And beare him, where the Lady Julia now is.

Was wont to lodge: Oh, my fate moves swift.

I have this Cardinall, in the forge already,

Now I'll bring him to th'hammer: (O direfull misprision)

I will not imitate things glorious.

No more than base: I'll be mine owne example.

On, on, and looke thou represent, for silence,

The thing thou beart it. Exeunt.

SCENA V.

Cardinall (with a booke) Bosola, Pescara, Malatesta, Eudora, &c.

Ferdinand, Delio, Servants with Antonio's Body.

Card. I am puzzell'd in a question about hell:

He saies, in hell, there's one material fire,

And yet it shall not burne all men alike.

Lay him by, How tedious is a guilty conscience?

When I looke into the Pith-pond, in my Garden,

Me thinks I see a thing, arm'd with a Rake,

That seemes to strike at me: Now? art thou come? thou look'st

There sits in thy face, some great determination, (ghastly)

Mix'd with some feare.

Bos. Thus it tightens into a question.

I am come to kill thee.

Card. Hah? helpe: our Guard.

Bos. Thou art deceiv'd: I'll not wait for thee.

They are out of thy howling.

Card. Hold: I will faithfully divide

Revenues with thee.

Bos. Thy prayers, and proffers

Are both unseasonable.

Card. Raise the Watch: we are betray'd.

Bos. I have confinde your flight:

I'll suffer your retreat to Julius Chamber,

But no further.

Card. Helpe: we are betray'd. Mal. Listen.

Card. My Dukedom, for rescue.

Red. Fye upon his counterfeiting.

The Tragedy of

Mal. Why, 'tis not the Cardinall.

Rod. Yes, yes, 'tis he :

But I'll see him hang'd ere I'll go downe to him.

Card. Here's a plot upon me, I am assaured : I am lost,
Unlesse some rescue.

Gris. He doth this pretty well :

But it will not serve ; to laugh me out of mine honor.

Card. The sword's at my throat :

Rod. You would not banle so loud then. (hand.

Mal. Come, come, let's go to bed : he told us thus much afore-

Pesc. He wish'd you should not come at him : but beleev't,

The accent of the voyce, sounds not in jest.

I'll downe to him, howsoever, and with engines

Force open the doores. Rod. Let's follow him aloofe,

And note how the Cardinall will laugh at him. (doore

Bos. There's for you first : 'cause you shall not unbarracade the
To let in rescue. He kills the Servants.

Card. What cause hast thou to pursue my life ?

Bos. Looke there.

Card. Antonio ?

Bos. Slaine by my hand unwittingly :

Pray, and be sudden : when thou kill'st thy sister,

Thou took'st from Justice her most equall ballance,

And left her nought but the sword.

Card. Omercy.

Bos. Now it seems thy greames was only outward :

For thou fall'st faster of thy selfe, than calamity

Can drive thee : I'll not waste longer time : There.

Card. Thou hast hurt me. Bos. Again.

Card. Shall I die like a Levoret,

Without any resistance ? helpe, helpe, helpe :

I am slaine.

Ferd. Th'allarum ? give me a fresh horse :

Rall'y the vaunt-guard : or the day is lost :

Yeeld, yeeld : I give you the honor of Armes,

Shake my Sword over you, will you yeilde ?

Card. Helpe me, I am your brother.

Ferd. The devill ?

My brother fight upon the adverse party ? He wounds the Cardinall,

There flies your ransom.

and (in the scuffle) gives

Card. Oh Justice :

Bosole his death wound.

I suffer now, for what hath former bin :

"Sorrow

the Dutcheffe of Malfy.

"Gorrow is held the eldest child of sin.

Ferd. Now you're brave fellows :

Casars Fortune was harder than Pompeys :

Casars died in the armes of prosperity,

Pompey at the feet of disgrace : you both died in the field,

The paine's nothing : paine many times, is taken away, with

The apprehension of greater, (as the tooth-ache with the sight

Of a Barber, that comes to pull it out) there's Phylsophy for you.

Bos. Now my revenge is perfect : sinke (thou maine cause

Of my undoing) the last part of my life,

Hath done me best service.

He kills Ferdinand.

Ferd. Give me some wet hay, I am broken winded,

I do account this world but a dog-kenell :

I will vault credit, and affect high pleasures,

Bos. He seems to come to himselfe, now he's so neer the bottome.

Ferd. My sister, oh ! my sister, there's the cause on't.

"Whether we fall by ambition, blood, or lust,

"Like Diamonds, we are cut with our owne dust,

Card. Thou hast thy payment too.

Bos. Yes, I hold my weary soule in my teeth,

'Tis ready to part from me : I doe glory

That thou, which stoodst like a huge Pyramid

Begun upon a large and apple bales

Shalt end in a little point, a kind of nothing.

Pesc. How now (my Lord ?)

Mal. Oh sad disaster.

Rad. How comes this ?

Bos. Revenge for the Dutcheffe of Malfy, murdered,

By th' Arragonian brethren : for Antonio,

Slaine by his hand : for lustfull Julia,

Poyson'd by this man : and lastly, for my selfe,

(That was an Actor in the maine of all,

Much gainst mine owne good nature, yet i'th' end

Neglected.)

Pesc. How now (my Lord ?)

Card. Looke to my brother :

He gave us these large wounds, as we were struggling

Here i'th' rushes : And now, I pray, let me

Be laid by, and never thought of.

Pesc.

The Tragedy of

Peſ. How fatally (it ſeemes) he did withſtand,
His owne reſciew?

Mal. Thou wretched thing of blood,
How came Antonioby his death?

Boſ. In a miſt: I know not how;
Such a miſtake, as I have often ſcene

In a play: Oh, I am gone,
We are only like dead walls, or vaulted graves,

Thar ruin'd, yeilds no eecho: Fare you well.
It may be paine, but no harme to me to die,

In ſo good a quarrell: Oh this gloomy world,
In what a ſhadow, or deep pit of darknes,

Doth (womanish, and fearefull) mankind live?
Let worthy minds, ne're ſtagger in diſtruſt

To ſuffer death, or ſhame for what is juſt,
Mine is another voyage

Peſ. The Noble Deſio, as I came to th' Palace,
Told me of Antonioby's being here, and ſhew'd me

A pretty gentleman, his ſonue and heir.
Mal. Oh Sir, you come too late.

Deſ. I heard ſo, and
Was arm'd for't ere I came: Let us make noble uſe

Of this great ruine; and joyne all our force
To eſtabliſh this yong hopefull Gentleman

In's mothers right. Theſe wretched eminent things
Leave no more fame behind em, than ſhould one

Fall in a Froſt, and leave his print in ſnow,
As ſoone as the ſun ſhines, it ever melts;

Both forme, and matter: I have ever thought
Nature doth nothing ſo great, for great men,

As when ſhe's pleas'd, to make them Lords of truth:
"Integrity of life, is ſame beſt friend,

Which nobly (beyond death) ſhall crowne the end." Exeunt.
